Coastal staff reveals conditions for freeway

By DAVID LELAND

STATE COASTAL Commission staff planners stopped short this week of endorsing Caltrans' recent application for the Hatton Canyon Freeway project, and attached a set of eight conditions that need to be considered before approval by the Coastal Commission.

The latest recommendation comes in response to an application filed last summer by Caltrans, which was amended in November and will be heard this month by Coastal Commissioners.

The hearing is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 15, in the El Dorado Room of the Cathedral Hill Hotel in San Francisco.

It is unclear what time the matter will be heard but, to play it safe, those involved should be at the hotel (located at Van Ness Avenue and Geary Street), by 10 a.m., according to Rick Hyman, coastal planner.

The Hatton Canyon Freeway item is the last issue on the agenda, and its time depends how long the Coastal Commission takes to hear the other matters.

Hyman added that it could be sometime in the afternoon before the issue comes before the Coastal Commission.

In considering the application, Coastal Commissioners have the option of approving the application as Caltrans submitted it, voting the application down, or approving the application on the conditions suggested by the coastal planning staff.

Because of the large number of requirements and delays, Caltrans has now moved its timetable for construction back to the spring of 1991.

Caltrans' officials had been shooting for 1990 to begin work on the project, which has been 30 years in the making.

"There's just not time to get it out because of the long environmental delay," said Ken Jones, Caltrans project engineer. "To get our plans completed by next year is not realistic."

The delay will be a costly one, Jones said, and will add "at least another million dollars" to the project.

Originally, construction cost were estimated at $25 million, but last year, citing rising costs, Caltrans revised the figure to $26 million.

•

RECOMMENDED STIPULATIONS by the coastal staff include:

• Visual impacts.

Responding to the concerns of the Hatton Canyon Freeway Advisory Committee, planners are mandating that Caltrans "demonstrate a screening and softening of the visual impact of the berm and bridges and minimizing of landform alteration to the maximum extent feasible through a combination of design modifications and landscaping."

In other words, the most important consideration should be to reduce landform alteration and habitat removal.

If approved, Caltrans would be required to submit a revised "Visual Impact Assessment" for the project.

That would include architectural renderings drawn to scale and superimposed on photographs of key views, and consultation with local officials and coastal staff.

Prior to advertising for bids, Caltrans would have to submit a final design, including landscaping, signing and habitat restoration plans.

• Bicycle/pedestrian access.

Caltrans will need to provide for continuous bicycle travel in both directions on adequate shoulders and/or off-road from south of the Carmel River bridge to the existing bikepath intersection at Highway 68.

• Habitat.

Caltrans would need to minimize intrusion into sensitive areas, including riparian vegetation (vegetation that grows along areas such as streams), Monterey pines, and Hickman's Onion patches.

"Caltrans agrees to include as part of its application to the county and Coastal Commission for coastal development permits, maps in sufficient detail...areas of disturbance, and areas of restoration within the coastal zone," according to the planning report.

• Recreation traffic measures.

Planners recommend that Caltrans "assume the lead" in a study of the needs for Big Sur-bound traffic services and opportunities for providing those in the vicinity of the project.

That study should be coordinated with the county, U.S. Forest Service, state Parks Department and the Big Sur Coast Multi-Agency Council, planners said.

The report, though mandated to be submitted within six months of federal approval of the project, does not bind Caltrans for financing any changes.

The mitigation does, however, stipulate that Caltrans give right of way to any change suggested and approved in the report.

• Flood hazard measures.

Planners urge Caltrans to present an analysis of how the Hatton Canyon Freeway project will meet the current flood protection regulations of the county.

• Lower speeds.

Coastal planners suggest that Caltrans incorporate design features in the portion of the freeway south of Carmel Valley Road to lower the maximum speeds at least 10 mph lower than the rest of the freeway.

"In any event, this surburban-to-rural transition area will be posted for lower speeds," the report said.

• Minimize a left-turn lane.

Coastal planners recommend that Caltrans redesign and reduce the length of the proposed left-turn lane onto Oliver Road/existing Highway 1.

"The lane for deceleration and left turns will extend no further south than the southern abutment of the new bridge, and the transition back to a two-lane road will be the minimum necessary to meet federal standards," according to the report.

In the new application, the northbound off-ramp at Rio Road has been eliminated and traffic travelling to the business section at the mouth of the valley will turn left onto Oliver Road and onto the existing Highway 1 to proceed to Rio Road.

• Residential street protection.

Caltrans must prepare an analysis of the effect of traffic on Carpenter Street and other residential streets in Carmel in conjunction with city and county traffic engineers.

Any necessary redesign would be included in the final plans.

Tree giveaway set for Dec. 3

LAST SEASON, Carmel-by-the-Sea's city forester and staff hand selected and harvested cones from some of the city's most significant pine trees. These trees were selected for their health, size, shape, and overall beauty. Most of these trees started their life in Carmel's forest before the city was incorporated.

These specially selected seeds have been sprouted and hand tended by Carmel's Forestry staff and are offered to the community in an effort to reforest and enhance the beauty of Carmel and the surrounding area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea's annual tree survey has noted a continued decrease in young pine trees on private property. Pines are the main trees that filter the sun, sweeten the air, and give Carmel-by-the-Sea the feel of a forest. These trees are our upper story trees which provide wind protection and beauty to our village. The Forestry Commission is making an appeal to those who live in and enjoy Carmel to do their part in restoring and maintaining our forest.

Please join the Forestry Commissioners on Dec. 3 from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. in the post office parking lot located at Dolores and Fifth. The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea would like to share these trees with you for planting in your gardens.

"C'mon, It'll rain in January."

Time to get tough

IT'S TIME to get scared. Worrying was for last summer.

If the Monterey Peninsula receives the same scant amount of rainfall this year as it did last year, water companies will not be able to meet consumer demand during the summer months.

That means zero water for some uses. Not less water. No water.

It is time for the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District to stop, recognize this fact, and take some constructive steps to avoid complete disaster.

To begin with, how, in good conscience, can the water board expect peninsula residents to happily join in its proposal to ration water by 20 percent (as is planned for this January), when there is no moratorium on new building permits in the rationing plan?

We are aware that a water district is sensitive to the needs of businesses like the construction industry is, but to expect residents to fulfill the total solution while the problem is allowed to grow is an outlandish proposal.

How can the water board expect people to believe that rationing is fair and equal when those who already live here must give up their share to stretch a shrinking resource, while the board increases the numbers dipping into it?

The Pine Cone is not anti-growth. We are against petty politics when it comes to how the precious and dwindling water supply is governed.

Also, how will the community ever be able to cut back sufficiently if the water saved through rationing and conservation is immediately applied to new uses?

Allowing the cities and county to reinvest conserved water in new growth could turn out to be one of the most irresponsible acts of this water board.

Some suggest that if the cities cannot invest their conserved water in new growth, the district, in effect, has reduced each jurisdiction's allocation. That is comparing apples and oranges, and with a greedy eye.

When the district's allocations to the cities and county were created, the homes and businesses had plumbing fixtures that used more water than reduced-flow fixtures in use today. Thus, the excess flow utilized by older fixtures allows a margin for water conservation — an unofficial reserve.

Permitting that unofficial reserve into new connections eliminates the possibility of reducing water consumption. In other words, when one is already on a starvation diet, it is impossible to tighten the belt even further.

Now is not the time to point fingers. Now is not the time to blame the varying factions on the water board for the problem. The current emergency transcends petty squabbles and needs immediate rectification.

The Pine Cone recognizes that these are difficult times and sometimes unpopular decisions need to be made. However, the possibility of no water to meet even basic needs is much too grim to indulge in political grievances.

Members of the water board are elected by peninsula voters who, we believe, have put their trust in board members to make those tough and sometimes unpopular decisions.

Now is the time for board members to do some serious self-searching to see if they are carrying out the mandate of peninsula voters and not run from the problem by burying their heads in the sand while waiting for rain ... which may be a long time in coming.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Showing support

Dear Editor:

The Carmel City Council is exhibiting a great deal of dedication and courage in tackling two very difficult issues in Carmel. These issues are transient rentals and subordinate units (second kitchens).

At the risk of being sued, the council is in the process of enacting an ordinance which prohibits transient rentals of less than 28 days. The need for the ordinance seems obvious since many absentee owners are using their houses as "mini-motels" in the residential area. They are deriving revenue from rentals, and probably writing off their expenses, including depreciation, which means they are operating a business for profit (or loss minimization).

As usual, some segments of the real estate industry, trying to protect a vested interest, are mobilizing their army (attorneys) and have threatened to go to war. Therefore, as residents who are trying to preserve our neighborhood from commercialization, we need to demonstrate our grassroots support to the council. Simply drop them a note saying you support ordinance number 88-22 (Transient Rentals) and add your voice to a chorus of support at the next council meeting (Dec. 6).

Because of some resident opposition at the last council meeting, the city council delayed a vote on the ordinance dealing with second kitchens. A special study session was established for early next year to discuss ways of mitigating residents' concerns.

This is a difficult issue since hundreds of second kitchens now exist in Carmel in apparent violation of city codes. It seems clear to me that the city cannot abate all these units. Therefore, we should have an amnesty period (as proposed by the ordinance), in which all may declare these units and in effect legalize them. After this period, we should toughen inspection and controls to see that no more are built except on an emergency basis. As concerned residents, we should offer our thoughts to the council in an attempt to resolve this tough issue in an equitable manner.

It is relatively easy in any situation to simply ignore the tough problems in the hope that they will go away. One may be fortunate and not antagonize anyone (some politicians are masters at this), but you will be recognized as a do-nothing who has little or no convictions on anything. Our council is demonstrating a willingness to jump into the arena and join the fray at the risk of being mauled in the process. Let's show them that we support them in their effort to accomplish the goals of their office. After all, we chose them to govern the city. Now we can show them we believe in their ability to do the job.

Stubborn group

Dear Editor:

I think it's terrible the way the National Writer's Union is treating Monterey Life magazine. Monterey Life wants to publish an anthology of the "Best of Monterey Life." The writer's union has organized local writers and they are refusing to allow Monterey Life to publish their past writings. From what I've heard, Monterey Life has never done very well and by boycotting Monterey Life these writers are making things even more difficult for the magazine. These writers are cutting their own throats.

A couple of businessmen in LA recently bought Monterey Life and they are putting a lot of money into the magazine and trying to do something nice. Why can't our local artists and writers cooperate with them? I guess writers and artists have always been a stubborn group.

Losing control

Dear Editor:

I attended the seminar at La Playa Hotel "Writing For Love And Money — 101: The Central Coast Market" that Mac McDonald mentioned in his "Critic At Large" column last week. I have worked as a writer and a photographer on this peninsula for many years. At the seminar I sensed there was something going on regarding Monterey Life magazine's treatment of writers but I couldn't figure out exactly what. The people representing Monterey Life refused to talk about it and said it wasn't important.

After reading McDonald's column, things became a little clearer. Thank you for that. Later I talked to people in the know and eventually came across an article in the Santa Cruz Good Times weekly which outlined why the National Writer's Untionis objecting to

By DAVID LELAND

MAKE NO mistake about it, "The Fonz" is quite taken with Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Speaking Tuesday before the Carmel Business Association, in what promises to be the first of several presentations to businesspeople and residents, Henry Winkler, whose career skyrocketed with the hit TV series Happy Days, let it be known that Carmel provides the ideal location for a film which he will direct, Turner and Hooch.

"My dream has always been to come back here sometime and have Carmel in a movie that I acted in or directed," said Winkler, 43, referring to a vacation he took here many years ago. "It's so gorgeous I don't know what to do with myself."

To be produced by Walt Disney Pictures, the film will star Tom Hanks (Punchline, Big and TV's Bosom Buddies) and Nancy Travis (Married to the Mob.)

The script, which is set in the mythical town of "Cypress Beach" and is the story of a policeman and the "ugliest junkyard dog in the world," is being written by Dan Petrie, Jr.(Beverly Hills Cop and The Big Easy.)

Hanks, who had left Carmel early Tuesday morning to prepare for a Barbara Walters television special, described the film as a "hybrid" of part murder-mystery and part romantic comedy.

Winkler is attempting to convince businesspeople, residents and the Carmel City Council that his production team would not disrupt Carmel's way of life.

He plans to shoot in Carmel, Pacific Grove, Monterey and several coastal areas sometime in "late February or early March." The entire time of the filming would take between 10 and 14 days, he said.

He added that few, if any, scenes would be filmed on Ocean Avenue in the central business district.

Carmel Mayor Jean Grace said the city council would review a city ordinance that strictly limits the filming of movies in Carmel at its meeting in January.

She added that she suggested to Winkler that he and his production crew meet with members of the Carmel Residents Association and other neighborhood groups before the issue comes before the city council.

Judging from the reaction of a packed house of CBA members at La Playa Hotel, Winkler has already made a few friends.

Before giving his humorous and impromptu 20-minute talk, which concluded with a brief question-and-answer session, Winkler circulated around the room and shook each person's hand. He also spent 30 minutes after the meeting "schmoozing."

Part of that time was spent with former Carmel Mayor Barney Laiolo, who represents Carmel residents with the CBA.

"I have no qualms with it (filming) as long as it doesn't disrupt the residential character," Laiolo said. "I told him (Winkler) about our laws and he'd better have it (shooting schedules), spelled out before he starts."

HENRY WINKLER, AKA "The Fonz," was all smiles this week when he talked to the CBA on his upcoming movie, Turner and Hooch, which he hopes to film in Carmel and other peninsula locations in early 1989.

AFTER SPEAKING before the Carmel Business Association this week on his upcoming film, Henry Winkler talked with Carmel City Councilmember Elinor Laiolo and former mayor Barney Laiolo. (Mac McDonald photos.)

DURING HIS short presentation, Winkler let the audience know that, while acting had been a lifelong dream, his career has taken a different course over the past few years.

"I've wanted to be an actor since I was 7," said Winkler, who said his big break came on his birthday when he was given the part of "Fonzie" on Happy Days, the popular series that lasted 11 years.

But after leaving the show, he "watched the desire to act drip out my fingers."

He then co-produced McGyver and followed that up with All the Kids Do It, a made-for-TV movie about drugs and alcohol. He also directed a Dolly Parton movie and, most recently, directed a feature film, Memories of Me, with Billy Crystal and Alan King.

He's back on track.

"I now have the same feeling (as acting), surging through my veins," he said.

But it appears that Winkler may have met his match with the co-star of Turner and Hooch, which is actually four dogs...imported from France no less.

Comparing one of the 9-month-old, 130-pound dogs to muscular football star Herschel Walker, Winkler said, "I was told a long time ago never to do a movie with animals — now I know why."

The four dogs — Kristoff, Igor, Barry and Beasley (the star) — put Winkler through his own hoops, but he takes it in stride.

He added that he's used to hard work, and the only job he's taken on that's harder than directing films is parenting his three children, who range in age from 5 to 17.

Winkler said that he also wants to make some of Carmel's school kids a part of the movie, and his production team visited Carmel High School Monday to broach the subject with school administrators.

One scene involves a Halloween parade, in which students could make costumes and then become extras in the movie, he said.

A cash prize of $1,000 would be given to the winner and the high school would also receive a cash donation, he said.

Carmel Unified School District Supt. Bob Infelise said he supported the idea of bringing Hollywood to Carmel.

"I think this would be a tremendous experience for our students," he said. "I'm impressed with the commitment that Winkler has when discussing his profession."

While Winkler acknowledged that movie production teams can sometimes become a "nuisance" to a community, he said inconveniences can be kept to a minimum during the filming.

"I would very much like to have your blessings," he said. "We will work together with great cooperation."

Sprinkler ordinance to be proposed to city council

By NANCY HILLS

AT ITS December meeting, the Carmel City Council will conduct its first official consideration of an ordinance that will require the installation of home sprinkler systems in new homes and major remodels or additions in the residential district.

The council will meet at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 6 in Carpenter Hall in Sunset Center.

The ordinance is sponsored by the Carmel Fire Department and will be introduced by the department's Fire Prevention Specialist Art Black.

It is similar to the commercial district sprinkler code and mandates the installation of a sprinkler system in all new homes and homes that are undergoing remodels and/or additions that are 50 percent or more of the assessed value of the home.

With 15 years of statistics backing him up, Black says that there is no question that home sprinklers are effective in fighting house fires.

"The average claim paid by insurance companies in a residential fire is $70,000. In a home with a sprinkler system, it is $700," Black said. That is a 99-percent reduction in losses due to fire.

The sprinkler system is that effective, Black explained, because it eliminates the fire during the initial blaze. A fire department, no matter how quick, usually gets to a structure after the fire has time to establish itself. By then, more area is burned, more smoke damage has occurred and the amount of water required to put the fire out has increased.

That is one reason sprinklers can also save on water damage, he said.

"One sprinkler puts out 30 gallons per minute while a firehose puts out about 180 gallons per minute," Black said.

Smoke detectors save lives, but sprinkler systems can do more...and save lives, Black said.

'The average claim paid by insurance companies in a residential fire is $70,000. In a home with a sprinkler system, it is $700.'

— Art Black
— Fire specialist

"A smoke detector will wake you up so you can get out of the house," Black said, "but a sprinkler system will save not only your life but your house and mementoes as well."

Many people are afraid that sprinkler systems will go off accidentally, inundating the home and ruining those mementoes that it was supposed to preserve.

"That is not true," Black countered.

The sprinkler heads are designed to go off individually and only when affected by the heat from a fire. A small kitchen fire will not set off the whole system, Black said.

Only the sprinklers directly affected by the heat go off, he said, because of the way the sprinkler head is built.

A sprinkler is activated when a little fusable link built into the head melts due to the heat from a fire, Black explained. When the link melts, it allows the water to flow through.

"The chances of them going off accidentally are almost nil," he said.

The type that goes off all at once is rare and used only in heavy industrial locations which need to deluge a fire.

Aesthetically, a residential fire system is designed to be as non-intrusive as possible and the sprinkler heads are much smaller than the commercial variety people are used to seeing, Black said.

"It only takes one sprinkler to cover a 15-foot by 15-foot room," he added.

•

FINANCIALLY, THE residential sprinkler system also makes sense, Black said.

The systems were designed to use as inexpensive as possible plumbing and easy installation.

"The piping for residential systems can use plastic PVC (polyvinylchloride) — similar to the white PVC people use in household plumbing. It can also be installed by the regular plumber who has a permit for residential sprinkler systems," Black said.

"In completely new construction, it costs about $1.25 per square foot to install," Black said. "The average size home built in Carmel is 1,800 square feet. That means the system would cost $2,250. When you compare that to the cost of building a home, it is not much to protect the entire investment," he said.

The cost per square foot in a remodel is dependent upon how much work is being done.

The more extensive the remodel, the less cost the system will be per square foot because it will be more like new construction installation, Black said.

Remodeling installation costs increase to a maximum of about $2 a square foot, he added.

"We are not talking about an awfully lot of money when a home in Carmel costs about $225,000. We're talking about 1 percent of the price and that's pretty cheap insurance," Black said. "When you consider how much of your life is in your home, a little part of you burns up in a fire."

Seniors program needs participants

CARMEL POLICE Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares wbout their welfare.

In addition to daily phone calls to participants, home visitations, tea parties, and luncheons are scheduled to "further enhance and improve the quality of our contacts" with those who are shut-ins or at-risk, Dampier said.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

County pushing initiative to increase state funding

By DAVID LELAND

TIRING OF state-mandated programs without the state funding that goes with it, county supervisors from throughout California have drawn battle lines with Gov. George Deukmejian.

The action took place last week during the state supervisors convention in San Diego, when representatives opted to take a "negative posture" toward state officials, according to 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Supervisors agreed that, by passing a statewide voter initiative, a half penny on the existing 6 percent state sales tax could be returned to the counties.

This could generate between $11 million and $13 million annually for Monterey County alone, Strasser Kauffman said.

"This is really the final effect of Proposition 13," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to the 1978 legislation that limited the amount that property taxes could rise, which severely affected the state's coffers. "There's less public money to deal with public services."

Strasser Kauffman said one of the largest fiscal drains in Monterey County is the county-run Natividad Hospital.

About 85 percent of those patients lack funds to pay their bills, and the state only provides partial reimbursement, she said.

Other state-mandated programs that are continually draining the county budget include toxic waste cleanup, road repair, an increasing amount of environmental impact reports and the rising cost of housing the jail population.

"These are all things that the people desperately need, but the dollars aren't there," Strasser Kauffman said.

The constitutional amendment, tentatively called the "Local Government Fiscal Stability Initiative," one-quarter penny of the state tax would return to the county it originated in, while the other one-quarter penny would be allotted according to population size.

Strasser Kauffman stressed that the initiative would in no way increase taxes locally or at a statewide level, but would merely reroute the tax money to the counties that are actually carrying out the programs.

She added that supervisors expect a challenge from the governor and state legislators, who sometimes use county funding as a political volleyball.

•

THE NEXT step will be for initiative supporters to obtain voter signatures, with supervisors planning for the measure to be included either on the November 1989 or June 1990 ballot, Strasser Kauffman said.

A total of of 595,485 signatures statewide are needed to qualify for the ballot, Strasser Kauaffman said. That is the equivalent of 8 percent of the votes cast for the governor in the last election.

She stressed that timing for the measure is important.

"There is absolutely no way we will be able to hold out over the next several years," Strasser Kauffman said, referring to the supervisors' constant manipulation of the annual budget. "We will have to make sure the dollars are there to produce services."

Strasser Kauffman said that the initiative is a last-ditch effort by supervisors to make ends meet.

"Lines have been drawn; we've tried other things that didn't work out," she said, referring to trial court funding promised the county that the governor disbursed only after cutting the amount. "We need to proteet our local population."

She said the state Legislature has also been lax in coming through with its promises concerning funding.

"The governor is not good on his word. The promises he has made, and those made by legislators, have not materialized," she said.

"So now we're going back to grassroots."

IN AN effort to channel state sales tax money back to the counties that are providing state-mandated services, 5th District Superivsor Karin Strasser Kauffman said a statewide initiative will be introduced soon.

Council to discuss housing ordinance, parking

By NANCY HILLS

TRANSIENT RENTAL ordinances and parking, parking, and more parking questions face the Carmel City Council when it meets for its regular December meeting.

The council has the final reading of an ordinance that forbids rentals of homes for less than 30 days in the residential district.

The council is expected to make the final approval, though real estate agencies and some homeowners are expected to take the ordinance to court.

The issue received much public discussion at the November council meeting, both for and against the measure.

The council will meet at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 6 in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center.

Additionally, the council will face three different parking issues on its agenda.

The council is also expected to re-establish an urgency ordinance that increases parking requirements per square foot in the commercial district.

The council will consider concept approval for the temporary use of the Handley property on Junipero Avenue as a parking lot once the property is city-owned. The sale should be final about Dec. 20 when the bonds are issued for the approximately $1.3 million purchase.

Though no specific plan will be approved, the city staff is currently working on a parking lot with no more than 75 spaces, landscaping, a small park on the northeast corner which has scenic views of Point Lobos and the removal of one shed that blocks those views.

The remaining sheds along Junipero Avenue will be used by the city for storage.

The lot will take the place of Hayward Lumber Co., which is currently leasing the property. Hayward is a for-profit company and cannot lease the site when the city issues its tax-exempt bonds.

The already paved land will be used as a temporary measure until the council determines the long-term use of the property. The council is expected to give the city staff direction on what long-term proposals to develop.

Suggestions made by a committee to make recommendations for the use of the property include a park with an underground parking facility.

The council will also continue to complete its financial legal arrangements for the acquisition of the property. A special council meeting is scheduled for Dec. 8 to complete the details of the sale.

• The council could also make a final decision on the controversial paving and striping of the north field by Sunset Center to use as a pay-for-parking lot.

The council is scheduled to review a proposal by Pansini Corp. to pave and landscape the field, which is now being used as a free parking lot.

Though not completed by press time, the proposal should include a plan to restrict parking in the surrounding neighborhood to residential parking stickers only.

Parking in the lot would be divided between monthly parking at about $30 per space and short-term $1.50-per-hour parking.

On other agenda items, the council will:

• Conduct a final review of the new sign and display code.

•Adopt a resolution to include the city in the formation of the county service area for the peninsula emergency paramedic services.

• Update an ordinance regulating the making of movies in Carmel. The changes in the ordinance are "housekeping" items to modernize outdated portions of the law.

Fire department sponsors drive to raise food, toys

THE CARMEL Fire Department is conducting a drive to raise food and toys for needy families on the peninsula this Christmas. The drive began the day after Thanksgiving and will continue until Christmas Eve.

The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned and nonperishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Any and all contributions will be deeply appreciated. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the Carmel Fire Department on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission, daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

For further information contact Mitch Kastros at the fire department, 624-1718.

'Watercolor '88' show in PG

The 23rd annual Watercolor Competitive can be viewed through Dec. 4 at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History.

This collection of works was judged by Robert Bechtle, professor of art at California State University at Sacramento. The competitive is limited to residents of Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Benito and San Luis Obispo counties. All are original, non-classroom works done within one year of the exhibition and must not have been previously hung in a juried show.

The competitive is sponsored by the museum and the Pacific Grove Kiwanis Club.

Explore nature via discovery walks

The Nature Company of Carmel is offering a series of nature photography walks around the Monterey Peninsula with biologist and photographer Eric Stavney. The walks are free of charge, and run 9 to 11 a.m. each Wednesday through Dec. 14. There will also be a walk from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Sunday, Dec. 4.

The walks are limited to eight people. For advance sign-ups and information, call 624-1334.

Artists sketch models in PG

An All-Day Draw, in which artists can share the cost of professional art models to be sketched, will take place Saturday, Dec. 3 at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

Artists and students work independently at easels and tables provided. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

Cost is $15 for the day or $4 an hour, and hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month. For additional information, contact the Pacific Grove Art Center, 375-2208.

'Intermezzo' screened in valley

The romantic drama, Intermezzo, which stars Leslie Howard and marks Ingrid Bergman's American film debut, will be shown Friday, Dec. 2 at the Carmel Valley Library.

Intermezzo will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the library, located at 65 W. Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley Village. Admission is $2.50 for adults and $1 for children. For details, call 659-2377.

Basketball played weekly

Carmel area basketball players are invited to play pick-up games at the recreation department open gym program.

Basketball runs Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Carmel Middle School gym. Half-court pick-up games are features.

Participation fee for the drop-in program is $1 per person at the door. For further information, call 626-1255.

Drum troupe entertains students

By LOIS FEIN

THE ASSEMBLY hall was quiet as Briarcliff Academy Principal Chuck Johnston moved center stage.

"You are about to experience something you probably will remember for the rest of your lives," said Johnston to the more than 200 students, faculty, and parents assembled for the School's special Thanksgiving program. Nov. 22.

A door opened and the faint sound of drums could be heard — at first a soft drumming, like the sound of a heartbeat; then a stronger, steady sound that filled the room with an intensity.

World-renowned African drummer Babatunde Olatunji and five members of his drum troupe entered through the door, fully dressed in traditional African garb, as the source of the passionate, African percussion. Two dancers with undulating shoulders and torsos, moved to the evocative power of the drums as Olatunji shook hands with students and parents, smiling and greeting them in a procession that lasted for minutes.

"We have a lot to be thankful for," said Olatunji, "thankful for food, for homes, for the clothes we wear — thankful for life."

And the troupe picked up their rhythms starting this special Briarcliff concert with Fanga, "The Dance of Welcome," charging the atmosphere for nearly one and a half hours, sharing with the children his explosive West African rhythms and explaining to them the rich associations of his songs.

The children were enthralled. The performance electrifying. "It's your turn now — how many of you would like to dance?" ask Olatunji. Nearly the entire student body moved to the front of the hall, swept up by Olatunji's powerful Jingo rhythm.

Olatunji performed for Briarcliff Academy students as a part of the school's music education program, which seeks to enhance students' knowledge and appreciation of music from different world cultures.

Olatunji and his troupe left the assembly hall the way they entered, to the slow, steady beat of his African drum, leaving behind a powerful impression of the richness of the African culture and spirit.

Carmel Rec Department helping Santa take calls

By NANCY HILLS

THE JINGLE of sleigh bells, the patter of tiny hoofs on the roof, a hearty "ho-ho-ho," and the ring-ring of the telephone.

Ring of the telephone?

Yes, in this age of easy communication, even Santa Claus has a new way to find both the naughty and nice — the telephone. For the second year in a row, the Carmel Recreation Department is helping jolly ol' Nick keep informed and in touch with his constituents. Free of charge, to boot.

Parents, grandparents and just folks can give a hopeful little true believer a joyous moment when Santa or Mrs. Claus makes a personal telephone call right to their home.

"Last year, I got calls from parents thanking us. It was a rewarding experience for the kids and adults. The kids thought they were really getting a call from Santa," Carmel Recreation Director Beth Kastrup said. "It's a special gift from the community."

The program is for children 3 to 8 years old and the calls will be made from 2 to 6 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 18.

Anyone interested in registering a child for a call must fill out a "child profile" which is included in the recreation department holiday brochure. The brochure is available at the Carmel Youth Center, Carmel City Hall and the Harrison Memorial Library and must be returned to the youth center by Wednesday, Dec. 14.

The program is free and will include children in the city of Carmel and the greater Carmel area, such as Carmel Valley, Hatton Fields, Carmel Woods and the mouth of the valley.

The profile asks basic questions about what school the child attends, age and grade, brothers and sisters, favorite toys, chores, child's Christmas list and what he or she will probably receive.

"Santa makes no promises and keeps the conversation very general," Kastrup explained.

Of course, Santa is very busy this time of year, so volunteers are needed to ensure this program gets the attention it deserves and everyone waiting on Dec. 18 will get their telephone call. Male voices are nice, but Mrs. Claus can make calls, too.

"It's a good way for people who don't have family here, especially senior citizens, to participate in the holiday spirit," Kastrup said.

Those interested in making calls should contact the recreation department at 626-1255.

•

THE SANTA Claus telephone program is just one of the holiday activities planned by the recreation department.

"We have a variety of arts and crafts classes, some of them the same ones we presented last year and some new ones," Kastrup said.

Even sports are included. The recreation department continues its basketball clinic for 8 to 12 years old from 9 to 11 a.m., Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 19 and 20 respectively at the Carmel Middle School. Teacher is Don Covington and the fee is $5.

"It's very popular and it gives the kids something to do during the vacation," Kastrup said.

The sessions are designed to help both the novice and already skilled player, she added.

The youth center is also offering a selection of holiday movies the week before Christmas, giving parents an opportunity to shop while the kids are entertained. Contact the Carmel Recreation Department for film titles, dates and times.

One special showing scheduled for 7 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 17 is a just released skateboard movie called Public Domain, a skateboarding film from the Bones Brigade Video Show. The film is strictly for fun and shows top skateboarders in action. The youth center will offer door prizes and the film is aimed at a 10-years-old and older crowd. The fee is $2 at the door.

Other classes include hands-on holiday crafts and cooking classes for the "very young," 2 to 6 years old.

The classes include (please check times, dates and fees with the Carmel Recreation Department):

• Holiday crafts for 2 to 6 years old — easily mastered crafts, small snack and socialization. The class is in two sessions. Time: 10 to 10:45 a.m., Friday, Dec. 2 and Dec. 9, at Carmel Youth Center, $7 fee, instructors Nancy Ochs/Nina Rappeline.

• Christmas decorations — children can make their own holiday decorations. Three different classes are planned for different age groups. All on Saturday, Dec. 3 at the Carmel Youth Center, $7 fee.

Times: for 2 to 2½-year-olds, 9 to 9:45 a.m.; 3 to 5-year-olds, 10 to 11 a.m.; 6 to 7-year-olds, 11 a.m. to noon.

• Holiday chef — making pretzel wreaths, popcorn snowmen and Christmas cookies. The two sessions are held in two classes for different age groups, Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 19 and 20 at Carmel Middle School.

First session for the 5 to 7-year-olds, 9 to 10 a.m., with an $8 fee. For the 8 years and older crowd, the sessions are from 10:15 to 11:45 a.m. and the fee is $12.

• Christmas cooking — 2 to 6-year-olds prepare holiday treats, recipe booklet and learn basic kitchen safety. In two session, 11 a.m. to noon, Fridays, Dec. 2 and 9 at Carmel Youth Center. Fee is $12.

• Ceramic ornaments — students will create holiday ornaments using non-bake clay. In two classes for different age groups. 5 to 7-year-olds from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. and a $7 fee; 8 years and older, from 1 to 2:30 p.m with a $9 fee. Both classes are in two sessions Mondays and Tuesdays, Dec. 19 and 20 at Carmel Youth Center.

• Basketry workshop — 11 years old and older can learn to make a traditional berry basket. This free class is 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 6 at the Carmel Youth Center.

• Holiday gifts — making various crafts-type gifts and ornaments for the holidays. Two classes for different age groups. Five to 7-year-olds, 9 to 10:30 a.m., $6; 8 years and older, 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., $8.

Both classes are Wednesday, Dec. 23 at the Carmel Youth Center.

PLANNERS NEUTRAL ON PROPOSED ROAD

That the Peninsula Planning Commission will take no stand for or against the proposed Pacific Grove-Carmel road was made evident at a recent meeting of that body.

There was some discussion of the project, the Grove representatives being in favor of the scheme and the Carmelites against it, but no recommendation was made to the board of supervisors, before whom the matter will probably come next Tuesday.

The only action which the commission will take is as to the route the road will follow should the board of supervisors act favorable upon the petition of W.R. Holman and others.

SIGN BEACH PETITION NOW, OR YOU WILL MISS IT

The beach petition, which should be one of the most sought-after petitions of the season, requires only about 225 names before it is presented to the city council for action.

Accordingly, those citizens who wish to sign the petition asking for an ordinance to preserve the pristine beauty of Carmel's white sand beach, had better sign quickly.

EDITORIAL: PEARL HARBOR

In a world with tragically renewed reasons to seek peace, it is good that we should look back now upon the 22nd anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

It hardly seems possible that it has been that long since we heard the terrible news that bright Sunday. What is even more incredible is that there are now young people who have married and are rearing their own small families who were not yet alive in 1941.

Since that holocaust ended in 1945, there have been other, less generalized conflicts, and even today there are American men dying in Viet Nam.

Let us, in looking backward to Dec. 7, 1941, redouble our resolve to work for a world without war, so that the children of those young couples will never be asked to go and die in a foreign land, or even to bear arms to defend our shores.

MARRIOTT COMING BACK AT HALF THE SIZE

Developers of the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge have cut the number of rooms in half in an effort to salvage what seemed to be a doomed project a month ago.

Monterey County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon confirmed last week that Gerald Dalton, the attorney for the Winthrop Carmel Inc. development group, contacted him about proceeding with a use permit for the scaled-down hotel at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

Slimmon said the revised project, as outlined to him, would have 175 rooms instead of the 376 originally proposed. Six of the 12 proposed tennis courts also would be removed, he said. In addition, the nine golf course holes that would have been eliminated under the original Marriott Lodge application probably would be untouched, according to Slimmon. The site is at one corner of Rancho Canada Golf and Country Club.

PRESSURE MOUNTS IN BIG SUR FOR COMPLETION OF HIGHWAY

Crews on a Big Sur mountain continue to push tons of dirt over the side in an effort to reopen Highway 1 through Big Sur—even during the recent driving rainstorms.

That might be good news to some, but it means nothing to Big Sur and Carmel merchants who say they believe the highway should have been opened 10 days after the landslide buried about one-quarter of a mile of Highway 1 in early March.

Instead, the California Transportation Department has worked on the landslide for the past nine months. The best they can say now is that they hope to open the highway by spring of 1984.

Merchants are particularly incensed with Cal-Trans because they don't believe Cal-Trans needed to "tear down the mountain" to prevent another slide.

City planners to take on takeout food policies

By NANCY HILLS

WALK-ABOUT food.

It is a subject that incites grumbles and mumbles from residents about how the downtown has gotten too "touristy."

It is also a subject that the Carmel Planning Commission is going to have to give a once-over at its next meeting.

At the request of Commissioner Carla Ramsey, the commission will conduct a review of its policies and rules regarding takeout food. That includes a review of use permits for businesses that appear to generate on-street food consumption.

The planning commission meeting will begin at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 7 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

Also on the agenda is consideration of changes to Carmel-by-the-Sea's Local Coastal Plan. The LCP is undergoing some revisions so it is updated and in agreement with the changes in the general plan.

The takeout food study session, Ramsey explained, was placed on the agenda because of the numerous complaints she has received from businesses and residents about dirty sidewalks — particularly on Ocean Avenue — and food getting on merchandise from people who come off the streets while eating.

The concern is that some businesses are not selling the type of foods that their permits were primarily issued for.

"Some of the bakery stores are selling takeout food and practically becoming delis," Ramsey suggested as an example.

It appears that some establishments are not providing the containers required in their permits and are not offering the types of foods the commission intended when issuing a permit, she added.

She added that she hopes some of the people who are concerned about the issue will speak at the meeting.

The planning staff has prepared a list of the use permits for food businesses (excluding sit-down restaurants), the provisions of their use permits and the number of times they have been contacted about violations of those permits.

Ramsey added that the purpose of the discussion and report is to find out what the problem is and, if there is one, how it is being generated. The commission may also discuss some solutions.

"I think that the commission is getting blamed for something we never intended when we issued the permits," she said.

Some possible remedies of the problem outlined by staff include the city hiring a part-time street sweeper, increased downtown garbage pick-up, or a sidewalk cleanliness ordinance.

Rather than inspect each business that has a use permit, the staff recommends the establishment of rules or laws for all establishments that sell food.

You don't have to be an American to die of a heart attack.

You also don't have to overeat. Or consume excessive amounts of cholesterol. Or ignore high blood pressure. Or smoke. But that's what a large segment of this country's population does. And that's one reason the United States has the highest incidence of heart attack in the world. At the American Heart Association, we're trying to help Americans change the way they live. And die.

Hotshot contest set for Dec. 3

ON SATURDAY Dec. 3 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department and Carmel Youth Center will hold the Pepsi Challenge/N.B.A. Hotshot Contest at the Carmel Middle School beginning at 10 a.m.

The competition is open to boys and girls ages 9 through 18 years old who reside in the Carmel area. Hotshot tests a youngster's speed, shooting, dribbling and rebounding ability within a one minute time period. Hot shot involves shooting baskets from five hot spots marked on one-half of a basketball court.

The first-place winner in each division will be eligible to compete in the peninsula finals. There is no fee to participate and registration will be taken at the activity. Please call 626-1255 for futher information.

First forester

HUGH SMITH, Carmel's first official city forester and a founder of the current Forestry Commission, received a plaque from Mayor Jean Grace (left) and city clerk Jeanne Brehmer honoring his more than 30 years of service to the community. Smith was appointed to the Carmel Planning Commission in 1957, then became the city's first forester in 1964. He served in that capacity as a consultant until it became a full-time position in 1968. He then helped organize a Forestry Commission for the city, and served as one of its members until last month. (Chuck Scardina photo.)

Eating happy

AS YOU know, our life is centered around food. We talk about it among our friends and exchange recipes throughout the year. We plan extravagant meals just to let our friends know that we can cook. While the average person has three meals a day, there are others who have six or seven depending on their build. For some of us we LIVE TO EAT! We want our fat cells to be happy and humming with ecstasy, especially around Christmas.

I have created a new exclusive Christmas diet that will thrill your body. Ladies and men, decorate your Christmas tree not with ornaments but with buttered popcorn, chocolate chip cookies, peanut clusters, fudge cake squares with fudge frosting, honey cookies, cinnamon stars, and Sees chocolate candy, and enjoy your holidays. Disregard those fad diets that make you gain weight, trash the Scarsdale Medical Diet and kiss off Weight Watchers once and for all.

Even as I write this article I am happily munching on a stale Butterfinger that I stole from the kids' Halloween bag.

The main purpose of this diet is to keep you in good spirits. After all, you don't want to bark at your husband after he's had a long day. Instead, greet him at the door with a mouthful of Oreo cookies or a Snickers bar or maybe both. Remember, if your body is neglected or deprived of good, solid nutritional junk food it will cause you mental stress and your personality might turn on you.

Dr. Ruth Wiener-Schnitzel states in her first and last diet book I'm Not Hungry Anymore, "As long as you do unusual, unexpected things to your body it becomes confused. The metabolism does not like to be disturbed. If you eat more than you should it goes on a high and therefore will lose more than you gain. (Or maybe it's the other way around.) You must surprise your fat cells!! Indulge in the finest cuisine and for heaven sakes, let yourself go! Let me give you an example. When you make those delicious cookies, use three cups of sugar instead of one. Toss in an extra package of Toll House Semi-Sweet Chocolate chips in the batter. Cooking is a celebration! Never count calories, never weigh yourself, never look in the mirror and never make fun of fat people. And lastly, don't talk to super skinny people, they may be heavily armed with diet pills."

As you can see, Dr. Ruth wants you to be happy. With her help I have created what you have been looking for in the positive side of a diet. While you are on this diet please refrain from exercising. It will only do more harm. Never talk about food...just EAT IT!

Good luck and let your taste buds go!

•

DAY 1 Breakfast: 1 pot of coffee (let your husband eat the grounds); 1 five-egg mushroom, avocado, tomato omelet; 2 or 3 Danish coffee crescents; side order of Strawberry Almond pancakes. (Never waste, eat everthing on your plate.)

Mid-Morning Snack: Thirsty? Treat yourself to a fine bottle of California wine. Eat a hearty lunch. You deserve it. You've made the beds, done the grocery shopping and watched your favorite television shows.

Lunch: 16-ounce Filet Mignon; 1 crisp green salad with lots of dressing; 1 basket of sourdough bread with plenty of real butter; 1 baked potato. Wash it down with your favorite drink or drinks.

Mid-afternoon: Enjoy a large piece of strawberry walnut cream cake. (Fruit IS a necessity in this diet.)

Dinner: 1 Broiled Lobster or Alaskan King Crab; 1 generous helping of rice pilaf; 3 carrots (get those vegetables in); 1 slice of American apple pie; 32 ounces of spring water.

It's very important that you do not have seconds. Don't be a pig! Never eat after 7 p.m. However you may eat after 9 p.m.

•

DAY 2 BREAKFAST: (You must be starving by now. Help yourself to a big breakfast.) 1 Pot of coffee; 1 glass of diet prune juice; 5 Buckwheat crepes with whipped cream; 6 Wild Bill sausages; 1 bowl of Fruit Loops cereal.

Mid-Morning: Treat yourself to a few sweet rolls at the Monterey Baking Co. (It's important to keep your blood sugar high.)

Lunch: 1 platter of Shrimp and Scallops wth plenty of garlic butter; 1 basket of sourdough bread; 1 bowl of long grain rice; 1 extra large slice of New York cheesecake.

Mid-Afternoon: 2 extra large slices of New York cheesecake.

Dinner: Have your husband take you out to dinner. Order everything on the left hand side of the menu. If you're still hungry, order everything on the right side of the menu. And if you're still hungry order the children's plates on the back side of the menu.

I could go on with this diet but by now you have probably drooled all over this article, so I will stop. If you want to know how the rest of the diet goes you can write to me at my P.O. Box in Monterey.

One extra note: this diet is hazardous to your health. Try it out on your children first before attempting it.

Happy eating!

30 MINUTE FILM PROCESSING?

Q: How can you do it so fast?

A: Because of recent breakthroughs by Kodak, Agfa and others, there are new chemicals which actually process the film and prints in half the time they used to take. Additionally, the new process, unlike the old which used thousands of gallons of water, is virtually water-free.

Q: How good is the quality?

A: The new R A processing actually meets or exceeds the performance and reliability of conventional processing. Additionally, our inspectors reject nearly ten times as many prints as the competition, assuring the highest quality prints every time.

Q: What if I'm not in a big hurry?

A: Some of our customers prefer to save a dollar on each roll by picking their prints up the following day. But most like to treat themselves by dropping their film off and strolling through the beautiful Carmel Plaza, enjoying themselves either shopping or dining. Or, go back to work and come back on their next break to pick up their beautiful prints. The point is that you don't have to wait to see your precious memories.

Q: Why do you do the 4"x6" jumbo prints?

A: Our customers have found that when they compare their valuable photos done as 3"x5" to the larger 4"x6", over 95% of them prefer the bigger, bolder, more beautiful 4"x6" prints!

Back in Carmel

WE HAVE been on vacation in Sud America, thus no column in the Nov. 17th issue. Always good to be home.

Imagine our delight and surprise upon arrival at the Lima Sheraton Hotel to discover a beautiful display of art in the hotel lobby. The subjects were varied — from a group of wild white horses you could feel charging right toward you, to bells happily flung in the air over city roofscapes, the appealing Inca children and magnificent mother figures reminiscent of Picasso in the '20s and '30s. Also, interpretive expressionism, quiet hilltop cathedrals, orange floral bouquets with piles of pigment as petals.

All were striking, colorful, charming and masterfuly done. We salute the artists of Peru and those of Ecuador, Argentina and Spain who have gone to Lima to live and to find artistic inspiration.

Back in 1621 when our Pilgrims were sitting down to their first Thanksgiving dinner, Lima had been the most important city in the Western Hemisphere for 80 years. Conquistador Francisco Pizarro established the site of the new city Jan. 6, 1535 on Epiphany or the Day of the Kings. Thus it became known as the "City of Kings."

As frequently happens with language differences, the Spanish had misunderstood the name of the area that the Indians called Rimac (on the Rio Rimac). The Spanish mistook the name for Limac and before they corrected the error it was shortened to Lima.

Located about midway on Peru's 1,400-mile coastline, modern Lima covers 27 square miles and is still growing. With a population of seven million people, the city makes up one-quarter of the country's total population and is the headquarters for everything in the largest country on the west coast of South America.

Our selection of the Sheraton proved to be a good choice. Central, safe (with guarded government building across the street), with attractive museums (the beautiful Italian Museum and Museo de Art with 2,500 years of culture), and plazas nearby, an esplanade in front, and reliable taxis available to anywhere for any length of time.

In fact, Lima has many museums scattered throughout the city. If you decide to go to Lima, do go to Museo del Oro & Armas des Mundo (about 25 minutes by cab to Monterrico, just past the racetrack), then choose from the list others that fit your special interests.

There were daily student protests across the street in front of the Palace of Justice that we watched from our Sheraton terrace. It's a poor country (99 percent of the people have little or no money), with inflation passing 1,200 percent this past year and the expectation is for slightly more than that in 1989. Unemployment is 40 percent or more.

It was nice to be able to walk over to the refurbished Gran Hotel Bolivar (where we stayed on a previous visit). We relaxed under the stained glass dome in the lobby (a smaller version of the one in Madrid's Palace Hotel), before dining with a choice of Peruvian or Continental dishes.

Someone said, "Lima es Peru." That is not quite true. Certainly, not for tourists (with the USA as leader, followed by West Germany, Italy, etc.). We chose the springtime to go to the City of Kings where it never rains and were rewarded with great weather (an average of 72 degrees). Summer officially begins Dec. 21 and will be a few degrees warmer. Summers there mirror our winters here. It's a lot like our area except we do get rain here.

The Sheraton lobby was a continuous flow of local citizens, tourists, the beat of Spanish music, entertainment and amusement. And, what would a visit to Lima be without attending the 222nd anniversary of bullfighting in Peru. Some fans maintain that the fights in Lima are as exciting as those in Madrid in the motherland.

On Sunday during the bullfight season the festivities begin with a special buffet luncheon before going to "Playa de Toros de Acho" (the oldest ring in South America).

This arena for the national sport always has every seat occupied, whether on the shady side (expensive) seats or the cheaper bleachers on the sunny side.

The Grand March is pageantry of the "Old World style," with caped horsemen, feathered hats, and a dozen matadors prancing in glittering tight-fitting costumes (all in hot pink hose), ready for an afternoon work of dance, enticement, drama, bravery and blood.

This season, however (from late October to early December), the bulls did everything they could to spoil the sport and foil the taunts to draw them into battle. Some selected for slaughter in the ring of screaming fans simply refused to respond to the pink and red fluttering capes.

One bull came charging out as though to challenge the bravest of picadors and matadors, ran around, evaded the men in the ring, jumped over the fence, to be turned out again into the ring.

By that time, the bull had decided to refuse to play the game, entertain the fans and die for their amusement. In fact, four out of the first six bulls refused to charge the capes and were taken away to be replaced by more aggressive animals.

The bulls that played the game were quickly irritated by the picadors and brought to an end by the final thrust of the matador's sword in the head. The smallest in the lot, a light

THE RICH live well in this city which has five golf courses. At the bullfights we sat next to Allan Brown of Florida, who is the golf pro at the Lima Golf Club.

Many of the best restaurants and shops have moved from downtown Lima to Miraflores (where the upper middle class lives), and where you can find top quality in native products without being constantly accosted by beggars and pickpockets (everyone warns tourists that even rings and watches could be removed right off fingers and wrists).

A short taxi ride down Paseo de la Republica brings you to Miraflores in less than 15 minutes. After shopping and dining yu can get a return taxi at one of the hotels: Maria Angola, Cesar's or Hotel Miraflores (some of the cab drivers are in suits and ties). We were lucky to get one driver who lived in New York for 18 years and said, "I made the mistake of coming back to Lima." He is opposed to the communist direction the government is taking and is sad that the USA is not well thought of there.

To most tourists, Lima is not Peru but a starting point to the untamed Amazon jungle (with its exotic wildlife, flor and primitive tribes), Lake Titicaca (the highest lake in the world), or to the fountainhead of the Incas — Cuzco and Marchu Picchu. We made the latter trip on our last visit to Peru and chose against altitude lag in addition to jet lag.

The best shopping for crafts is Cuzco (the Cuzco hat is attractive and hard to find in Lima), and although there isn't a large variety of items to suit American tastes, as one would expect — search and you will find. Silver, gold, art, some antiques, cotton fabrics, alpaca wools, etc.

The people are attractive and very nice. Lima is peppered with many parks filled with beautiful flowers, interesting plazas and a climate near perfection. Sports include: cricket, fishing, horse racing, polo, sailing, soccer, surfing, swimming, tennis, water skiing, cockfighting and golf. Condos are in $20,000 — $40,000 range.

There is nothing more memorable than dinner at sunset on Costa Verde Beach (a long stretch of white sand sans anything verde), at the Rosa Nordica Restaurant — a new 19th Century-style building with gazebo and lots of colorful flowers. It is built on the rocks smack on the Pacific rim.

MEANWHILE NEWS was being made over in Frankfurt, Germany. The 18th Culinary Olympics with 100 chefs from 30 nations competing proved again that our American chefs can hold their own in such keen competition. The USA came in third after Switzerland and West Germany.

The hottest competition is in the "hot food" division and "our" team won again for an unprecedented third time in a row. USA rated 81.54 points, trailed by W. Germany at 78.12 and Norway at 77.26. This is the only food actually eaten by the 15 judges and 150 members of the public.

This is the meal that brought the USA the highest scoring: Chesapeake Oyster Consomme, Napa Valley Squab with Lentils, Cabbage and Rye Turnovers and a "Big Apple" dessert with (kiln-dried) Cherry Sauce.

The US of A came in second in pastries, topped by

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

The comma

POOR GRAMMAR is the most obvious error in writing, followed by poor spelling and last, but not least, incorrect punctuation.

Punctuation is always my bane because I have yet to do the obvious with regard to learning all its intricacies—memorize the rules. This failing of mine demands referring constantly to Strunk and White, Elements of Style, a demand I successfully resist because I am impatient, and therefore, frequently in error.

Correct punctuation is, however, particularly important because it allows writers to convey the proper meaning of their words without confusion and misunderstanding. As did the proverbial nail in the horse's shoe, a misplaced comma can cost writers their equivalent of a "war." The comma may be, in fact, the single most important punctuation mark in language.

Barry Goldwater and John Kennedy shared the head table at one of those less serious formal dinners where the hosts required that each guest speaker write out one sentence about himself to be read by another guest. Goldwater drew Kennedy's name and the senator from Arizona prepared a sentence that read, "President Kennedy says Sen. Goldwater is the best politician in America." Kennedy perused the note, added two commas, and with evident glee read, "President Kennedy, says Senator Goldwater, is the best politician in America." Goldwater roared. Despite their political differences the two men developed a strong respect and affection for one another over the years, a fact to which they often alluded in their writings and comments.

A review of some of the more common and important rules involving the comma may help to avoid the most frequent errors. For example, in a series of three or more terms with a single conjunction, use a comma after each term except the last. This is called the serial comma.

gold, silver, or copper

Paranthetic expressions, often afterthoughts (such as this one), should be set off between commas. The idea is to recognize that if the phrase between the commas is removed, the sentence makes perfect sense, and none of its meaning is lost. Words of emphasis also fall into this category such as, however, and nevertheless. When such words begin a sentence, they are followed by a comma.

Strunk and White say no comma should separate a noun from a restrictive term of identification, The novelist James Fowles, yet I find that awkward on many occasions, as in the first sentence of the following anecdote.

Maria Fedorovna, wife of Czar Alexander III, once saved a prisoner from Siberia by changing a comma in the Czar's order, which read in its original form, "Pardon impossible, to be sent to Siberia." (I leave it to you to decipher the Czarina's changed comma). The Czar's problem, of course, is that he ought to have not used a comma. The rule says where two clauses, grammatically complete and not joined by a conjunction, form a single compound sentence the proper punctuation is a semi colon (or a period creating two sentences).

Clauses introduced by which, where, or when are almost always preceded by a comma. Technically they are called nonrestrictive clauses, but that is unimportant except to grammarians. The rest of us can simply program ourselves to react to the word. The same is true of conjunctions, e.g., and, but, as, for, while, which introduce an independent clause. An independent clause is one which can stand alone as its own sentence. This may be the one we find most troublesome.

The city was destroyed, and its records have disappeared.

There are situations where afterthoughts or clauses of clarification (both are dependent clauses), normally set off by commas, follow a conjunction and precede a second independent clause. To avoid too many disruptive commas, eliminate the comma after the conjunction.

Times are difficult, but (no comma here) if we move with confidence, we can provide the solutions.

The comma, however, is acceptable to separate two thoughts different in nature, but alike in form.

I hardly knew him, he was so changed.

In that sentence, the thoughts are interrelated. Where the thoughts differentiate, the semicolon often replaces an absent conjunction.

I had been there before; (but) it was dark as a tomb.

Novelists sometimes replace the comma and conjunction with a period when dramatic emphasis is desired.

Again and again he called out. No reply

On occasion, it may prove appropriate to omit all punctuation. The Irish playwright Richard Brinsley Sheridan once was asked, as a Member of Parliament, to apologize for insulting a fellow MP. "Mr. Speaker," replied Sheridan, "I said the honorable member was a liar it is true and I am sorry for it. The honorable member may place the punctuation where he pleases."

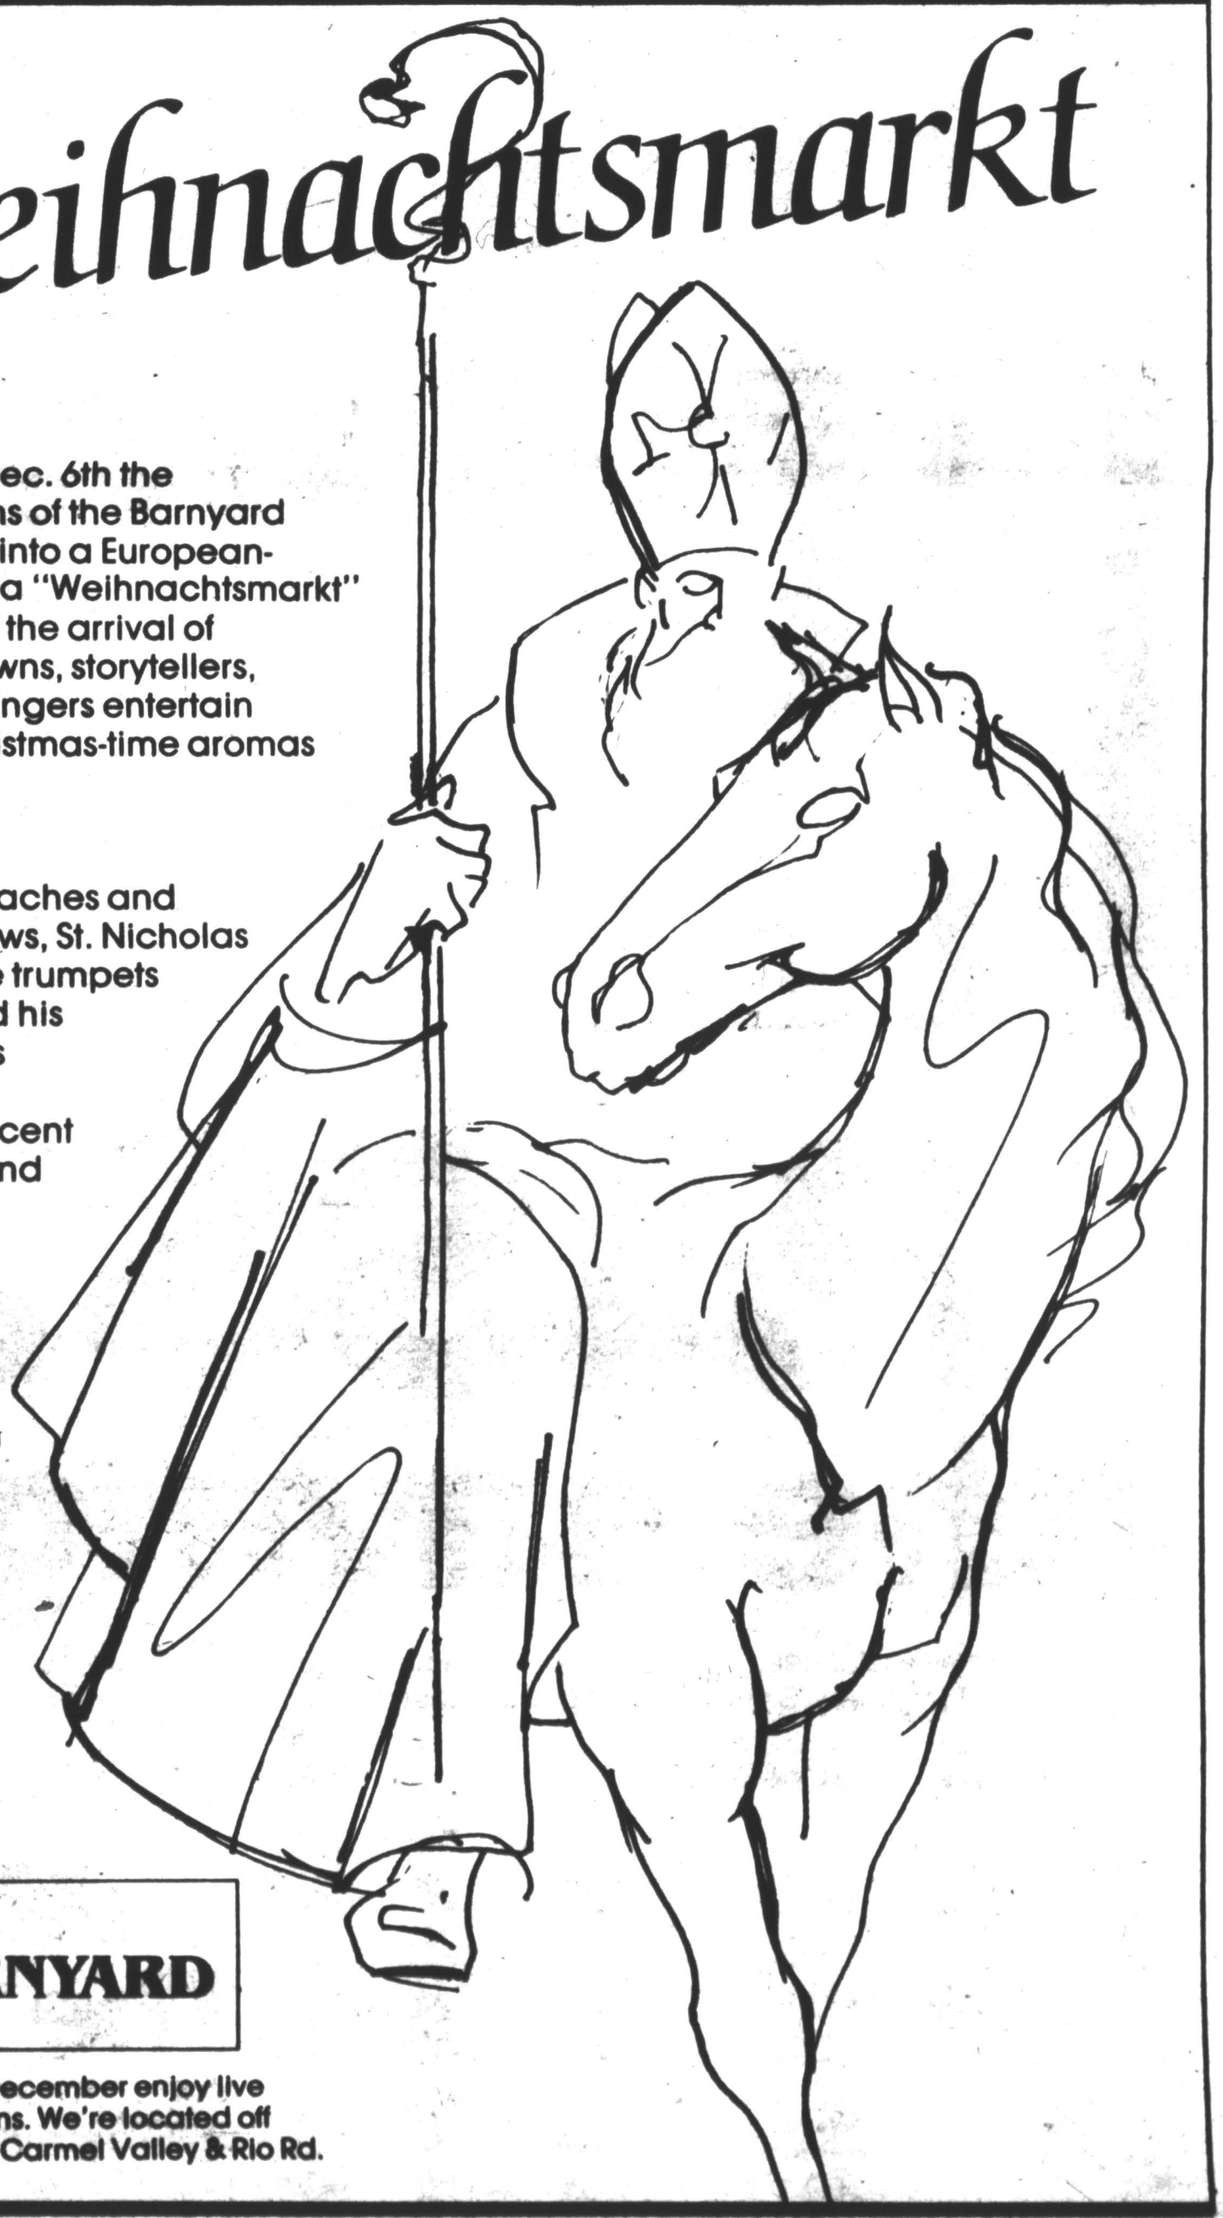
Weihnachtsmarkt

Every year on Dec. 6th the beautiful gardens of the Barnyard are transformed into a European-style village fair, a "Weihnachtsmarkt" in celebration of the arrival of St. Nicholas. Clowns, storytellers, musicians and singers entertain as delicious Christmas-time aromas fill the air.

As dusk approaches and anticipation grows, St. Nicholas is on his way. The trumpets and choir herald his arrival. He enters on horseback to light the magnificent Christmas tree and give every child special treats.

Join us for this memorable holiday tradition from noon to dusk Tuesday, Dec. 6th at The Barnyard.



THE BARNYARD

Every weekend in December enjoy live music in the gardens. We're located off Hwy. One between Carmel Valley & Rio Rd.

PASSING NOTES

By Ticien Carlson

A future mayor...

I'VE HEARD it said that Student Government at the high school level does little more than plan dances and lunch-time activities. Earlier this month, however, the Carmel High student officers participated in something considerably more meaningful. The first "Youth in Government Day" in eight years was a great success.

This program presented a wonderful opportunity for students to learn about the city government and meet community leaders. It also provided a forum for adults and students alike to share their ideas about current issues. We really appreciate the time and interest extended by the city of Carmel and the community.

'Civics class lectures cannot compare to this hands-on experience. It is invaluable for youth to feel involved with their government as they grow up to be citizens.'

The day began with a lunch barbecue at the Carmel Youth Center, where students leaders met and ate with their designated government counterparts and listened to various speakers. Then the group split up and toured such pubic buildings as the police station, the new library annex, and the parks and services department.

After the tour, the students met their counterparts at Carmel City Hall. there, they spent more than an hour discussing the agenda for the afternoon meeting as well as the functions of that particular part of the city government.

Finally, it was time for the city council meeting. Students assumed the roles of their counterparts and ran the meeting themselves. The items of discussion included the Hatton Canyon Freeway plans, the fate of the lumberyard, and a possible new position in the police department.

The students were nervous and made a few blunders, which only served to delight the audience. For the most part, however, the meeting ran smoothly with good results. The students voted against Caltrans' second bridge proposal for the freeway and against adding a position to the police department. Their suggestion for the lumberyard involved underground public parking with a playground on the ground level. While these decisions have no official bearing, the students werre able to express their opinions to the real city council.

Civics class lectures cannot compare to this hands-on experience. It is invaluable for youth to feel involved with their government as they grow up to be citizens. Perhaps a future mayor of Carmel was sitting on the council at that Tuesday meeting...

Seniors receive free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the SCANS (Senior Citizen and Nursing Services) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible.

Appointments are required for the screenings, which are offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church; in Pacific Grove at the community center and in New Monterey at the New Monterey Neighborhood Center.

MONTEREY ELKS TO HOLD ANNUAL CHRISTMAS CHARITY BALL

The Montere Elks Lodge No. 1285 will hold its annual fundraising Christmas Charity Dinner and Dance on Saturday, Dec. 3. No-host cocktails start at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m., followed by dancing. Dress is formal or semi-formal. Admission is $20 per person. Due to limited seating capacity prepaid reservations are requested, and may be made at the Lodge Office, 150 Mar Vista Drive, Monterey.

The event is open to members, guests and prospective members. Proceeds derived from the charity ball will be programmed for the lodge's local charitable programs. Monterey Elks Lodge is a non-profit organization.

ELKS SPONSORED ESSAY CONTEST

The Monterey Elks Lodge No.1285 has invited all sixth-grade students of the Monterey Peninsula to enter an essay contest; the theme: "Why We Should Honor Our Flag."

The Lodge will award $25 each to three boys and three girls whose essays are selected as winners. This is a part of statewide contest sponsored by the California/Hawaii Elks Association. The winners will advance to the state Elks Convention, to be held May 1989. Judges for local peninsula contest will be composed of a committee of citizens of the community.

Interested students should contact their sixth-grade teachers or school principals for requirement to submit essays.

All entries must be received by Dec. 19, and should be sent to the Monterey Elks Lodge No. 1285, 150 Mar Vista Drive Monterey, CA 93940. Methods of grading and requirements for submitting essays have been distributed to the peninsula schools, both public and private.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL SPONSORS BLOOD DRIVES

The Red Cross/Community Hospital Blood Services Team will hold a blood drive Wednesday, Dec. 7 at former Wells Fargo Bank space at Del Monte Center. Incentive to donors include free Sees candies and a free breakfast at McDonalds. All shoppers are invited to attend and donate life-giving blood.

Other blood drives will be held on the following dates and at following locations: Thursday, Dec. 1, Pacific Grove High School; Thursday, Dec. 8 American Legion Hall, Carmel; Friday, Dec. 16, Blood Center/Community Hospital; Tuesday, Dec. 20, Monterey Plaza Hotel, Cannery Row.

For more information call 625-4811 or 625-4814.

MIDDLE SCHOOL TO HOLD FUND-RAISER

The Carmel Middle School will hold a fund-raiser from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6 at Brentano's book store at The Crossroads Shopping Center.

During those hours simply identify yourself as being from Carmel Middle School or that you want to participate in behalf of Carmel Middle School and 20 percent of total sales from that day (by purchases on behalf of the school), will be donated to the school.

A SOLUTION TO WINTER ENERGY BILLS IS RIGHT AT YOUR FINGER-TIP.

Winter's colder temperatures and longer nights increase the need for light and heat. Combined with higher rates, this may soon mean a larger energy bill. Starting now, with a little extra care, you can help keep costs under control.

First, if your health and comfort permit, turn down your room thermostat to 68° or lower. If you don't have an automatic setback thermostat, turn it down to 55°, or off, before you go to bed and you'll save even more. Turning off the room thermostat when you leave the house can produce additional savings. And unless you have a dishwasher that needs a higher water temperature, turn the water heater down—but not below 120°.

PG&E can send you a form which you can use to conduct your own home energy audit. For more tips, contact your local PG&E office. They can show you more ways to help control energy costs through conservation and bill payment options.

CARMEL LEGION POST FUND-RAISER TO FEATURE ROCKING HORSES AS AWARDS

The American Legion Carmel Post 512 will be awarding two handmade rocking horses to two lucky winners at 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3 and Saturday, Dec. 10 at the Safeway store at The Crossroads shopping center at Rio Road and Highway 1.

Tickets for the drawings — at $1 each — will be available from 1 to 5 p.m. each day in front of the store.

"Besides making two children happy with the rocking horses, funds raised will be used for our community service programs," said Al Chapin, chapter commander. "We sponsor oratorical contests on Americanism, participation in government through Boys State, plus scholarship awards."

For further information call George Buck, first vice commander, at 624-0994.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY LIGHTS HOLIDAY TREE

The Monterey-San Benito Unit of the American Cancer Society will feature a Remembrance Tree starting at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2 at the American Tin Cannery Outlet Center, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove.

The tree-lighting ceremony is open to the public, refreshments will be served and the Calvary Choral Group will perform. Rebekah Sepulveda, a 6-year-old leukemia patient from Greenfield, will officially light the tree.

The Remembrance Tree is an opportunity for the community to honor and remember family and friends by making a contribution to the American Cancer Society during the holiday season.

Cost of the luncheon is $21.50. Reservations should be made with either Carolyn Woodhall, 625-9054 or Ellen Dunnion, 624-3454.

ANNA FOWLER BROWN ENTERS BRYN MAWR COLLEGE

Anne Fowler Brown, daughter of Margaret Secombe Brown of Carmel and Benson Brown of Montreal, Canada, entered the freshman class at Bryn Mawr College this fall. Brown is a graduate of the York School in Monterey.

Bryn Mawr college's Class of 1992 includes 337 students who come to the campus from 39 states and 21 foreign countries. Sixty-five percent of the students graduated from public secondary schools, thirty-five percent from independent schools and foreign schools.

Founded in 1885, Bryn Mawr was the first college in the nation to offer both graduate and undergraduate degrees to women. It continues today to offer more than 30 programs in the liberal arts and sciences to its 1200 undergraduate women and to the more than 500 students in its two coeducational graduate schools. Bryn Mawr is consistently rated as among the top ten liberal arts colleges in the nation.

VALLEY WOMEN HOST LUNCHEON PROGRAM

The Carmel Valley Women's Club will have luncheon and program Wednesday, Dec. 7 at the Ridge, Robles Del Rio Lodge.

Organist Josephine Siple and vocalist Jean Waller as musical partners will present a selection of Christmas music. Hospitality is set for 11:30 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m.

TRI-COUNTY CORPORATE CHALLENGE FOOD DRIVE PLANNED

A tri-county Corporate Challenge Food Drive is being planned for Dec. 5-16 by the Monterey County and Santa Cruz Food Banks to deal with a food crunch being experienced by many emergency food organizations in the central coast area.

The two food banks hope to enlist more than 100 companies and organizations to operate food drives. The food collected would be turned over to the food banks, which would then redistribute it to about 95 agencies, including emergency food pantries, soup kitchens and emergency shelters, among others.

The food banks plan to provide support to comapnies as needed, including delivering and picking up food barrels.

The shortages of food being experienced by emergency food organizations are caused by several factors. Many food pantries have encountered heavier than normal traffic during the past several months. And demand for canned and dried food increases during winter months because fresh produce is less accessible and more people with seasonal jobs are out of work.

SENIOR LINE

By Bill Schneider

Puff, puff

Q. I'M 67 years old and have smoked about one pack of cigarettes per day since I was in high school. I now live in a board and care facility and, believe it, my pleasures are few. The staff and other residents are constantly badgering my friend and me to quit and have designated only one area where we are allowed to smoke. We know it's not good for us but don't we have any rights?

M.C., Salinas

A. SINCE you gave me the OK in your letter, I contacted Donna Johnston, director of the Monterey County Ombudsman Program, who promised an investigation to ensure that your rights are not being violated. This was a tough question to ask me since I'm one of those "Holier-Than-Thou" types who quit 10 years ago.

Today, I don't think there are many people in this country who deny the harmful effects of tobacco, alcohol or the so-called recreational drugs but I still have a problem with restricting an individual's right to smoke as long as he does not violate others right to a smoke-free environment. Our attempt to ban alcohol after World War I failed miserably and our attempts to control drub abuse do not seem to be faring better. The alternative of legalizing drugs really frightens me when I visualize a zonked-out society. End of sermon.

•

Q. MY father does not speak English. He is in a convalescent hospital in Salinas and is very lonely. I try to visit him as often as possible but my own family keeps me tied down. Is there some organization which would be able to help him?

Mrs. S.R., Marina

A. THE Friendly Visitor program of the Alliance on Aging matches volunteers to individuals with special needs. They have successfully matched most of the foreign languages commonly found in this area.

•

Q. I am a Licensed Vocational Nurse and have worked for the past year in an acute care hospital. I plan to return to school for special training in geriatrics. I especially want to volunteer to work with people suffering from Alzheimer's Disease since I recently helped care for my dear grandfather before he died with this disease. Do you think nursing homes would be a good place to begin? Which one should I call?

LVN

A. YOU didn't say where you plan to get your additional training but any nursing home would welcome you as a volunteer and probably try to recruit you as a full-time employee since RNs and LVNs are in great demand. Almost anywhere you go there should be an Alzheimer's Day Care Center, such as the wonderful one we have in Seaside, or an Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association (ADRDA) which can fill you in on all related activities in the area. I admire you for your aims.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write Senior Line, Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, Ca. 93906 or call 372-7662. Senior Line needs your name, address and phone number but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

Service with a smile

MEMBERS OF the Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary Club put a new twist into the meaning "service club" by volunteering to serve Thanksgiving dinner to members of Carmel Foundation last week. More than two dozen Rotary members and family (above) showed up Thursday to serve turkey and all the trimmings to members of the foundation. Rotary member Greg Kraft (above left), served mashed potatoes at one table, while Bob Burriss (above right) poured wine at another.

Also aggravating the situation is the fact that there have been cutbacks in the U.S. Department of Agriculture surplus commodities program and no federal monies available the past several months to purchase other types of emergency food provided to the needy by food pantries.

Last month, the Monterey County Food Bank, a project of the Alliance on Aging, reported that cheese was no longer available through the surplus commodities program and that cutbacks of 60 to 75 percent were forecast for this fiscal year.

Also, the next increment of federal monies used to purchase canned and prepared foods probably will not be available for another six to eight weeks, according to Neil Thompson, Monterey County Food Bank director. He said that the food bank's last allotment of canned foods was distributed to emergency food pantries in late July.

A recent survey by the Monterey County Department of Social Services indicates that 32,000 persons receive some sort of supplemental food assistance in the county. During the winter months, there are probably twice that number not receiving supplental food who are in need. The report concludes that Monterey County needs to double its current food programs for the needy, which include low income families with children, the elderly, the unemployed and others.

Companies and organizations that are interested in participating in the Corporate Challenge Food Drive may contact the Alliance on Aging (Monterey County Food Bank) at 372-7843/758-1523 or the Santa Cruz Food Bank, 722-7110/662-0487.

Dec. 5, at 5:30 p.m. at Portola Plaza in Monterey.

Rep. Leon Panetta is honorary chairman and the mayors of area cities are co-chairmen. Entertainment will be provided by the Santa Catalina Upper School Chorus, Brian Vaughn, director, refreshments will be served.

The tree will shine atop the Monterey Sheraton throughout the holiday season. Community members may donate lights in honor or in memory of their loved ones for $15 or more per light. Lights will continue to be added to the tree throughout the holiday season as donations are received. Names are entered in the Tree of Life Memory Book, which is located in the lobby of the Sheraton Hotel.

Some of the ligths will be in memory of individuals who are no longer living, but many buy lights for someone special in their daily lives, such as a child, a friend, or a loved one. A light on the Tree of Life makes a special gift, and an acknowledgement card is sent to those honored by the dedication.

"The lights shining on last year's Hospice Tree of Life were a brilliant display of love and community support," said Robert Brower, Hospice board chairman. The tree honored more than 3,000 loved ones last year and brought Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula over $32,000. Once again the proceeds will go to the Hospice Patient Care Fund, according to Brower.

Sponsors for the event include KMST-TV, KWAV 97 FM Radio, Monterey Rotary and the Monterey Sheraton Hotel.

Donation envelopes are available at local police departments, from event sponsors, or by calling the Hospice Development office at 372-6565,

BLIND CENTER TO HOLD COUNTRY STORE NIGHT

The Blind & Visually Impaired Center (formerly the Blind Service Center), will hold their annual fund-raiser, Christmas Country Store Night, Friday, Dec. 2 from 4 to 8 p.m. at 225 Laurel Ave. in Pacific Grove. The proceeds from this event help provide vital services to the blind and visually impaired in Monterey County free of charge.

There will be a sale of ceramics, handcrafted items and baked goods, a silent auction and a drawing. Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served at 5 p.m.

If you would like to donate handcrafted items, baked goods, items for our drawing, or purchase tickets, please contact Kathy Wise at 649-3505.

VALLEY'S ANNUAL TREE LIGHTING CEREMONY

For many residents of Carmel Valley, the holdiay season begins when the lights on the Christmas Tree on Saddle Mountain come on. Since 1963, the Christmas Tree has brightened the holiday season. Traditionally, the tree lights come on in conjunction with a party. When the tree was first lit by a group of Mid Valley neighbors, they threw a neighborhood party. The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department Volunteers took over the tree project in 1976. Since then the tree lights have come on with a ceremony and open house at the fire station, open to the public.

Each November the volunteers make the trek to the tree to prepare it for the upcoming holiday season. Light bulbs and/or sockets are replaced and the wiring is checked. The tree lighting traditionally takes place the first Friday of December.

This year, the holiday season will officially begin with the Annual Tree Lighting Ceremony and Open House Friday, Dec. 2. The Open House begins at 6 p.m. and the lighting of the tree is usually between 6:30-7 p.m.

The Mid Valley Volunteers invite a local resident to be the official Tree Lighter each year. This year, Mrs. Granny Talmadge, a long-time resident of Mid Valley will light the tree. "Granny is a valued and true friend of the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department. She is known by all for her warmth and genuine caring for people," said Garry Carmichael, fire chief. "She will share her community spirit with all those who attend the open house. Her daughter, Sue Sally Hale, was a Mid Carmel Valley volunteer for many years before moving to Southern California."

WALDORF SCHOOL SPONSORS WINE, TOY, ART AUCTION

The Second Annual Wine, Art and Toy Auction, a benefit for The Waldorf School of the Monterey Peninsula, will be held Friday, Dec. 2nd at the Carmel Women's Club, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

This year's offerings will continue a standard of high quality items of handmade wooden toys and children's furniture, a hand-embroidered fairy tale quilt, a selection of vintage wines, and original works of art by renowned artists. The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. with wine tasting of some of those vintage wines and hors d'oeuvres and desserts catered by Chefs Forrest and Marilee Childs of Glen Oaks Restaurant, Big Sur.

Guests can preview the auction as well as bid on silent auction items, including some wonderful children's art, handcrafts and gift certificates, between 6:30 and 8. The live auction begins at 8. Tickets are $2.50. For more information call 372-4677 or 758-2542.

CANTREE DRIVE TO AID NEEDY AT CHRISTMAS

The Christmas CanTree, a massive drive to collect cans of food for the needy at Christmastime, opened its fourth annual campaign on the Monterey Peninsula on Nov. 28.

Sponsors of the drive, the Carmel and Monterey Peninsula Boards of Realtors, hope to attain a cherished dream—to collect 100,000 cans of food for the Salvation Army and its ongoing program of food distribution.

Last year's drive collected 65,000 cans and $4,700 in cash donations. This enabled the Salvation Army to distribute 1,500 food baskets at Christmastime.

Assisting in this year's drive are Army soldiers from Fort Ord, who are donating their time to gather up cans from various collection points; public and private schools, Boy and Girl scouts, service clubs, real estate offices, banks, savings and loan firms, title companies, and many others.

A "Christmas CanTree Week" has been set for Dec. 11-17, during which a maximum effort will be made from Marina to Carmel Valley to collect canned food from strategically placed collection boxes.

Climaxing the effort will be the construction of a "skyscraper of a CanTree" at Del Monte Center on Saturday, Dec. 17. The building of the tree will highlight a day of musical entertainment, clowns, and special treats for the whole family. The event will be staged at the site of the old Mediterranean Market from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"Individuals and families are encouraged to bring donations of food to CanTree Day," said Larry James and Linda Harvey, Realtors who are co-chairing the CanTree drive.

After the CanTree has stood for a couple of hours, it will be disassembled by army volunteers, who will then take the cans to the Salvation Army's storage center.

The Christmas CanTree Project is part of a driv undertaken by Realtors in many California communities wit the support of the California Association of Realtors. Othe CanTree drives are being sponsored in the Central Californi coastal area by Realtors in Santa Cruz, Watsonville, Salina and San Benito County.

Cash donations to the drive are equally welcome, and a monies collected go directly to buy food. Overhead costs of th drive are borne by Realtors and their affiliates—lending firm and title companies.

United Way agencies, the Salvation Army, YWCA, Family Resource Center, Catholic Social Services and the Red Cross.

"In the spirit of giving, the Doubletree Hotel is reaching out to help the less fortunate during this special time of year," said Dan Brown, director of marketing. "Last year we brought smiles to many faces, in spite of the reasons that brought them to us, and by stepping up this year's Room at the Inn we hope to brighten the lives of even more people this holiday season".

Doubletree started Room at the Inn a few years ago, discovered there was a growing need for the community service, and has upped the scope of the program each year to fill that need. Doubletree has now established the program as an annual holiday tradition that will be presented as a gift to all the communities where the upscale hotels are located.

HEART ASSOCIATION EMPLOYS NEW STAFF

Three professional staff members recently have joined the local American Heart Association. Cliff Kemper, formerly associate director with the AHA Alameda Chapter, has become the Central Mission Trails Chapter executive director.

"He worked with the Alameda Chapter for eight years, so is well-versed in all American Heart Association activities," said local president, Dr. James Egan. "Our chapter will launch a new outreach program into the King City, Hollister and Santa Cruz areas this year, and our board feels that Cliff is an excellent individual to head up this new thrust for our programs and development."

Kemper graduated from UC Berkeley in 1983 with a degree in geography

Celia Engel joined the chapter as a field representative and program specialist who will focus on San Benito county.

Leigh-Anne Cade has come from the Virginia Affiliate of the AHA where she had worked two years as an area director. She will hold the position of field representative with the local chapter with a focus on development in the Santa Cruz area.

AT&T PEBBLE BEACH NATIONAL PRO-AM GOLFERS WIN $70,000 FOR TOURNAMENT CHARITIES

A team of professional golfers representing the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am has won $70,000 for tournament charities in a season-long competition on the PGA Tour, placing the Monterey Peninsula tournament eighth among 44 tour events vying for $2 million in the Nabisco Team Charity Competition.

Bill Borland, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation, which stages the AT&T Pebble Beach, made the announcement after pro golfers Paul Azinger, Steve Jones, Blaine McCallister and Loren Roberts won a total of 1.192 million team points during the 1988 PGA Tour season, which ended Nov. 13.

"We're thrilled with the results," said Borland. "This is a special day for our charities, which already have been granted more than $1 million in proceeds from the 1988 AT&T Pebble Beach—the most money that the tournament has ever earned for charity.

"It's extra special," Borland added, "since Steve Jones, one of the members of our charity team, also won the 1988 AT&T Pebble Beach and will be our defending champion in 1989."

The 1989 AT&T Pebble Beach tournament will be played Jan. 23 through Jan. 29 at Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill golf courses.

Borland said the Monterey Peninsula Golf Foundation will soon be deciding how, and to which charities, the prize money will be distributed.

Tournaments competing in the 1988 Nabisco Team Charity Competition "drafted" players to represent them in late 1987. Players on the team are awarded a single point for every dollar they win on the PGA Tour, and the team with the most points at the end of the season, wins the most money for its tournament.

Taking first place in this year's charity competition was the Independent Insurance Agents Open, formerly the Houston Open, which earned a combined point total of 1.605 million and $500,000 for its charities after Curtis Strange—a member of that tournament's team—won the Nabisco Championships of Golf last weekend in Pebble Beach. Strange's win propelled his tournament team from seventh in the standings to first.

Borland said professional golfers competing on behalf of the AT&T Pebble Beach during the 1989 PGA Tour season will include David Rummels, Robert Wrenn, David Canipe and Tim Norris. The player draft was held earlier today in Kona, Hawaii.

JAMES BOYD ORAL HISTORY PRESENTED

Falling down a mine shaft in Western Australia at the age of 3 did not deter James Boyd (formerly of Carmel) from a career which led him to become one of the world's outstanding mining men. He says in his oral history that his first memory is of his father, wearing a mine cap with a candle, carrying him up a ladder to safety.

The oral history volume was presented to Mrs. Boyd (now living at Carmel Valley Manor), and three of Boyd's sons in November at the Engineers Club of San Francisco where more than 70 members and guests of the San Francisco section, American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical, and Petroleum Engineers gathered to honor the memory of James Boyd. The interviews were completed and Boyd reviewed the transcript before his death in November 1987. Professor Douglas Fuerstenau of the department of materials science and mineral engineering represented the University of California at Berkeley in presenting the volume, entitled Minerals and Critical Materials Management: Military and Government Administrator and Mining executive, 1941-1987. It is the latest in the Western Mining in the Twentieth Century oral history series of the Regional Oral History Office at the University.

Born in Kanowna, Western Australia, and schooled in England, James Boyd came to America when his father became manager of mines in Death Valley for Pacific Coast Borax Company. He graduated from California Institute of Technology, and was named a distinguished Alumnus. He received his Ph.D. from Colorado School of Mines and became a professor of economic geology there. He served in World War II as deputy to General Lucius Clay, first directing the procurement of critical materials, and later in charge of redevelopment of German industry.

He returned to Colorado as dean of the School of Mines, then became director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, vice president of Kennecott Copper Co., and president of Copper Range Co. After retirement he continued to serve his profession and the nation as executive director of the National Commission on Materials Policy and chairman of the National

APPRENTICES GRADUATE FROM GREENBRIER CULINARY APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM

During a special culinary weekend, November 11-13, 1988, seven culinarians graduated from the renowned Greenbrier Culinary Apprenticeship Program. This advanced training program for professional chefs was instituted at the resort in 1957 and since its founding has graduated 183 chefs, many of whom are continuing their careers at The Greenbrier.

Among the 1988 graduates was Robert J. Kolb, son of Earl J. and Rosemary Kolb of Carmel. Kolb, a graduate of Carmel High School, has assumed a position at Keystone Resort in Colorado.

SOROPTIMISTS SPONSOR TRAINING AWARDS PROGRAM

The Soroptimist International of the Monterey Peninsula in conjunction with the Sierra Pacific Region is sponsoring the Training Awards Program. The winner of the local award will become eligible for the regional contest in April 1989. Two awards are presented at the regional contest: a $2,250 and $1,500 award to be used for education.

This award is given to assist mature women toward training and entry or re-entry into the labor market. We are looking for a woman who is in vocational or technical training and has a financial need, as she is the head of the household or has a family financially dependent on her.

If you are this person, or know someone who is, obtain an application from Sandi Thibodeaux at Bank of America, Monterey, 646-5755. The application must be filed prior to Dec. 15, 1988. The local award will be presented in early 1989 at an awards dinner, with the regional award presented in April 1989.

HEART ASSOCIATION ANNOUNCES DANCE FOR HEART WINNERS

The American Heart Association, Central Mission Trails Chapter, announced the top five fund-raisers from October Dance for Heart. They are Romona Holt of Santa Cruz, who collected $2,626. Holt said her 4 1/2-year-old daughter Kristina, "is what gives me the push. She will probably have her fourth heart surgery at Stanford this summer." Kristina was born with a congenital heart defect but is doing well thanks to modern surgical procedures.

"I always wanted to do something but never knew what to do until I heard about Dance For Heart on television one day," Holt said. She was second highest fund-raiser in last year's Dance for Heart and was determined to be first this year. "It was like a part-time job," she said of her effort. "I worked about three or four hours every day in September and in October until the event." She convinced almost 200 people to pledge and had two donations of $100 but the others mostly ranged from $10 to $25.

Holt and her husband Dan will vacation in Hawaii as grand prize winners. They have another daughter, Vanessa, who is 2 1/2.

The other top fund-raisers were Marlene Zebleckis of Salinas with $2,366, Burnie Riley of Salinas with $2,265, Peggy Anne Borchard of Salinas with $1,300.

Total pledges and registrations from the event to date total $33,000 and chairman Patricia Griffin of Salinas expects that to climb even higher as some of the 256 participants are still turning in funds.

Members from New Image, an aerobic dance club in Salinas, jointly collected $7,634 to put their club in first place as Dance For Heart supporters.

SEARCH ON FOR LOCAL TWINS

Identical female twins, 17-26, attention!

Fame and fortune are beckoning in the first-ever pageant just for twins. Sponsors of Miss Gemini America Pageant, set for San Francisco's Palace of Fine arts in June of 1989, are looking for participants.

Twins must be identical females, unmarried. No special talent is required. Participants will be professionally tutored by former Beauty Queen Kristine Hannan in her San Francisco model studios. No entry fee is charged. The winners of the pageant will be awarded a host of prizes, among them twin convertibles, a round-the-world trip, wardrobe, and professional-services contracts.

Local twins who wish to participate can obtain applications from Miss Gemini America, 166 Geary St., San Francisco, 94108.

OBITUARIES

Vernon H. Ragsdale

Funeral services took place Oct. 25 at the Monterey Peninsula Mortuary at Mission Memorial Park, for Vernon H. Ragsdale, a retired Carmel Public Works Department employee and longtime Pacific Grove resident, who died Oct. 21 in Modesto. He was 75.

Born June 7, 1913 in Clarksville, Ark., he lived in Pacific Grove for 51 years.

Survivors include his daughter, Shirley Azevedo of Modesto, three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Alice I. Morton

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Alice Isabel Morton, a retired U.S. Postal Service worker who died Oct. 27 at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital. She was 84.

Born Nov. 21, 1903 in San Francisco, she was employed in the San Francisco regional office of the postal service before her retirement. She moved to Carmel in 1976.

She was also a resident of Kobe, Japan; Shanghai, China; Hong Kong; and Manila, Philippines. During World War II she was held in an internment camp at San Tomas, Philippines.

Survivors include a sister, Helen Albert of Walnut Creek; and several nieces and nephews.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Rosina M. McCabe

A mass of Christian burial was celebrated Nov. 12 at the Carmel Mission Basilica, for Rosina McCabe of Carmel, who died Nov. 7 at her home. She was 84.

Born July 31, 1904, she lived in Carmel for the past 10 years, and was a homemaker.

She is survived by a sister, Mary of Carmel.

George Garcia

Private services took place for George Garcia of Pebble Beach, an inventor and avid golfer, who died Nov. 11 on a Pebble Beach golf course of an apparent heart attack. He was 61.

Born April 30, 1927 in Trinidad, Colo., he had lived on the peninsula for about 10 years.

After graduation from the University of Denver, he entered the Army. During his service in Berlin, he was the personal bodyguard of Gen. Lucius Clay. On discharge from the Army, he began his career as an inventor. He founded the Hydraulic and Shovel Co. in Houston, and also improved and developed the world's first hydraulic backhoe. His most recent invention was a tire pressure monitoring system.

Mr. Garcia is survived by his wife, Birgit (Cricket), to whom he had been married for 24 years.

Paul H. Rice Sr.

Memorial services took place Nov. 20 at the Habing Family Funeral Home in Gilroy, for Paul H. Rice Sr., a former Monterey Peninsula resident who was well known among local square dancers, who died at a Gilroy convalescent hospital. He was 79.

Born Oct. 23, 1909 in Marengo, Iowa, he owned and operated the Paperback Exchange in Gilroy. A Pebble Beach resident from 1949 to 1961, he was instrumental in bringing square dancing to the peninsula, having started more than 20 square dancing clubs in the area.

He was a self-employed engineer for 57 years and served as a major in the U.S. Army in World War II.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge of Carmel, the Gilroy Presbyterian Church, the Gilroy Lions Club and the Gilroy Toastmasters.

Survivors include his wife, Valeta; a daughter, Karin Roberts of Sparks, Nev.; two sons, Paul Jr. of Gilroy, and David of Brooklyn, N.Y.; two brothers, Ron of Perry, Iowa, and Harry of Ottumwa, Iowa; six grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Gilroy First Presbyterian Church Organ Fund.

Weekend activities at CBI

Professor Mikhail Tsypkin of the Naval Postgraduate School will be the guest speaker at Congregation Beth Israel, 5716 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel, Friday, Dec. 2, following the 8:15 p.m. Shabbat service.

Tsypkin, a leading authority on Soviet affairs, will speak on "Soviet/Jewish/American Relations; The Prospects for Peace and Freedom."

A Hanukkah celebration will take place Sunday, Dec. 4 with a Religious School Round Robin from 9:30 a.m. until noon, followed by a potluck luncheon hosted by the Religious School and Cradle Roll.

A Hanukkah Dance, sponsored by the Singles' Havurah, will take place Sunday evening at 7. For further information call 624-2015.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

In addition to the daily phone calls, home visitations, tea parties, and luncheons are also scheduled to "further enhance and improve the quality of our contacts" with those who are shut-ins or at risk, Dampier said.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

God's 'law of love says it all'

Carmel Pine Cone
Nov. 26, 1981

Almost 100 years ago, an eccentric Anglican deacon and mathematics professor at Oxford wrote Alice in Wonderland under the pseudonym Lewis Carroll. This novel appeals to both young and old, and many of the characters have become part of the world's folklore.

The duchess says, "Tis so; 'tis true, oh 'tis true, 'tis love that makes the world go round."

Having said this and argued that it is true, we can now argue that no four-letter word in the English language is so abused, misused and misunderstood as LOVE.

Once, on a trip to New York, I saw a powerful but morbid play by Graham Greene, The Living Room. In one scene, an elderly priest in a wheelchair berates his two old maid sisters over the suicide of their niece. "Do you think if she had come into a house where there was love she would not have hesitated, thought twice and talked to us?"

Oh Lord, help us to understand that your law of love says it all, and may we realize that love is so misunderstood in all walks of life because most of us are neither walking, jogging, nor running, but standing on the sidelines of life trying to hitch a free ride. Amen.

University of Pennsylvania researchers Aaron Katcher, M.D., and Ericka Friedmann, Ph.D., have discovered that people with pets live longer after a heart attack than those without. Further studies have revealed a link between lower blood pressure and pet ownership. One study showed that subjects could lower their blood pressure temporarily by merely gazing into a fish aquarium.

Monterey Life's treatment of writers. Why do we have to find out about what's going on in our community from a newspaper published in Santa Cruz?

I think that Monterey Life's claim to own reprint rights to works previously published in the magazine without contract and Monterey Life's plan to reprint this writing, photography and artwork with puny compensation ($25) in their hardbound "Best of Monterey Life" anthology, raises a lot of important issues and I wish the full story had come out at the seminar. In the spirit of fairness, it is important to recognize that the people who have hatched these neat plans over at Monterey Life are two businessmen from Los Angeles who have only owned the magazine for the last four months.

Apparently the new owners of Monterey Life are misrepresenting copyright law and abusing the trust of local writers, artists and photographers. I found out that Monterey Life's editor Anne Sage lives in Los Angeles. How can she edit a magazine about the Monterey Peninsula and deal with local artists while living in Los Angeles? I also found out that the magazine is produced and made in Los Angeles.

Maybe this is a xenophobic comment, but it seems typical of the style of LA businessmen that they think they can come into the Monterey Peninsula and exploit, for their personal gain, the last eight years work of the local creative community, not to mention the business community of advertisers.

I also found out that much of our local media is owned by people who don't live here. Are these absentee media owners and investors going to speak for us through our media? It seems to me this is just anther sign of the many ways we are losing control of the development of our community.

Stewart Fuess

Open Invitation

Dear Editor:

Mac McDonald's column titled "Literary Whirlwind," dealing with the copyright issue between the National Writer's Union and Monterey Life, couldn't have been more to the point.

Writer's rights are complex and significant. There are many writers on the Monterey Peninsula who make a living at their profession and they have the right to protect their work. Monterey Life doesn't seem to agree.

Let's open up this discussion now. Consider this an open invitation to the owners of Monterey Life to meet at the negotiation table and stop the stonewalling. As you wrote in your column, "It is...an issue that won't soon go away, no matter how hard Monterey Life wishes it would."

Ray A. March
Co-Chair, Local 7
National Writer's Union

Unnecessary act

Dear Editor:

People who buy and wear furs should be aware of the price in suffering each pelt costs a fellow creature.

Whether caught in the infamous steel-jaw trap or raised in crowded cages and killed in unbelievably cruel ways in order not to damage their coats, millions of animals are sacrificed to human vanity each year.

All of this is not necessary and surely not acceptable to any thoughtful person.

KAZU broadcasts weekly

Local opera buffs appeased

By ANNE PAPINEAU

GONE ARE the days when Barbara Smythe could walk to Lincoln Center and obtain a last-minute ticket to the Metropolitan Opera. For all its beauty, the Monterey Peninsula must seem a comparative desert to this opera buff transplanted from mid-town Manhattan.

"I'm adjusting," says the accountant who left New York eight years ago.

In addition to attending performances by local opera ensembles, Smythe has found a way to keep grand opera alive in her heart. She is a volunteer programmer for Pacific Grove-based radio station KAZU — the person who spins the platters and provides the local commentary during "The Second Season of Opera" and "Live from the Met" broadcasts.

KAZU, a listener-supported station, transmits over 90.3 FM. Smythe's turn in the control booth is slated for 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays. KAZU is the only local source for broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, which receive national sponsorship from Texaco.

"This isn't just, 'I feel like doing a radio show this week. It's a year-round commitment," she explained in a voice that still bears traces of her New York upbringing.

Her broadcast is in fact orchestrated months in advance, so she can coordinate her words and music with the current season of not only the Metropolitan but the San Francisco Opera as well. Ticket holders to the San Francisco season can prepare themselves for those offerings by tuning into Smythe's show. She will play highlights of the season and offer insights into the history of a piece in a way that can only be achieved by an enraptured devotee.

"I've been interested in opera since I was a baby," she admits. "My mother always had it on the radio."

To enliven her show, Smythe draws from her own library of records and compact discs. "People in the community have also come forward. Scott McClelland has been very generous in lending recordings."

Since taking on the show in March, Smythe has discovered a colony of educated listeners who call in to supply answers to her weekly "Opera Quiz."

"I play examples of music and listeners either have to guess the theme of the selections or name the voice. The prizes are usually tickets to local concerts," she explains.

"I might play five or six different arias and ask what they have in common — for example — they're all prayers, or they're all arias where the characters are in prison. Often it's the same people who call up to answer the quiz questions."

Smythe believes in supporting local musical groups as well as the major, urban companies. Her KAZU show is frequently punctuated with live interviews with members of the Monterey Opera Company, the Cabrillo Opera Festival and other local groups.

The unifying force in this variety-peppered program is Smythe's own love of the artform. In addition to being an avowed fan, she is also a soprano who studied voice here and in New York. She has sung with the Carmel Bach Festival Chorus, performed solos in churches and sang in each of the "B-Sharp Follies" staged by the Monterey County Symphony Guild.

Among her favorite singers are Jon Vickers, Montserrat Caballe, Sam Ramey, Luciano Pavarotti and Placido Domingo. Smythe also speaks fondly of remembered performances she attended of the Metropolitan Opera.

"Except for one occasion I was always able to get into the Met at the last minute," she recalls. "I have a real love for just the human voice, the voice interpreting. And the acting ability of a vocalist is also important. That's why I love Maria Callas. She was tops in my book — for me because of the wide variety of her roles. Today no one can run the gamut from the coloratura to the dramatic range."

The KAZU broadcast of "Live from the Met" will open a new season at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 3. The opening show will feature "The Met Marathon," which features highlights of past interviews and broadcasts. On Saturday, Dec. 10, KAZU will broadcast Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci.

BARBARA SMYTHE provides the local commentary during broadcasts over public supported radio station KAZU of "The Second Season of Opera" and "Live from the Met."

And Barbara Smythe will be at the helm, preparing a new opera quiz and offering insights.

"I enjoy the show, I really do. I miss it the few times I haven't done it," she quips.

Film star and her daughter autograph two new books

The Thunderbird Bookshop will host a booksigning reception for culinary artist Sylvia Thompson and her mother—film actress Gloria Stuart, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6.

Sylvia Thompson's fourth cookbook, Feasts and Friends: Recipes from a Lifetime, contains more than 150 original recipes and is an informal autobiography that traces the author's international culinary education. Anecdotes from her cooking career began with her grandmother and progressed to mastering the haute cuisine of her screen actress mother's Hollywood dinner parties.

Stuart states in her most recent accomplishment: "In 1932, I visited with Una and Robinson Jeffers at Tor House in Carmel-by-the-Sea. We felt so honored to be there, so impressed by their presence and cordiality. And so, 56 years later, I again felt honored to be able to pay homage to that vital couple—by recording the loving inscriptions the great poet painted around their home for his wife and twin sons."

Shanghai Acrobats make Carmel debut

REPRESENTING A cultural tradition that is more than 2,000 years old, the Shanghai Acrobats and Magicians will perform Monday, Dec. 5 in Carmel's Sunset Theater. All seats for the 8 p.m. performance are $12.50. Tickets can be reserved by calling 624-3996. Sunset Theater is on San Carlos Street near Ninth Avenue.

Richard Lofton originals exhibited at Evans Gallery

PAINTINGS and drawings by Richard Lofton, member of the Carmel Art Association from 1944 until his death in June, 1966, will be on display in the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center through Dec. 30.

Included in the exhibition will be paintings of the Gullahs among whom Lofton grew up in the seaside village of McCleelanville, South Carolina, as well as paintings of the California desert and the coastline of the Monterey Peninsula. Drawings and paintings of Richard Lofton's friends and family will be shown for the first time. The majority of the paintings and drawings will be from private collections on the Monterey Peninsula.

Lofton paintings are included in the permanent collections of the Columbia Museum of Art, South Carolina; the Gibbes Art Gallery in Charleston, the Santa Barbara Museum of Art, the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Monterey Museum of Art and numerous private collections.

During his years in Carmel, Lofton served on the board of the Carmel Art Association and taught painting at the Santa Catalina School in Monterey. The whale skeleton which for many years enhanced the parking lot at Whalers' Cove at Point Lobos State Reserve served as inspiration for a series of colorful oil paintings by Richard Lofton which were exhibited at the Carmel Art Association and are now largely in the possession of private and public collections.

Lofton's yearly painting expeditions to Death Valley with Dr. Russell Williams resulted in a series of brilliant Death Valley landscapes, a few of which will be included in the show.

A graduate of the Citadel, the military college of South Carolina, Richard Lofton attended the Art Students League in New York City and became director of the Community Art School in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, until he was called to active duty with the army in 1942.

After separation from the army at Ford Ord he became a vital part of the Carmel community, teaching, painting, hanging shows for other artists, judging shows, painting California's deserts and mountains and painting other painters.

Mythological subjects, satyrs, centaurs, nymphs and the Minotaur appeared repeatedly in Richard Lofton's paintings. Intensity of feeling is revealed in his paintings of battles between centaurs and minotaurs and in his large portraits of satyrs. Some of these works will be included in the December exhibit.

The Marjorie Evans Gallery is opened each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There is no admission charge.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Artful counterforce

EVERY NOW and then it happens—the truly significant meeting of human beings. It happened in South Africa just the other day. Bishop Tutu greeted Mother Teresa (there to help establish a township mission) and took both her work-sculpted hands in his larger ones. The news photo contains such joy between their faces that it now hangs on my bedroom wall with Bird Parker and comedic Dexter and the Virgin de Guadalupe.

As South African factions head toward a showdown, jazz always will be the great and artful counterforce against our domestic racism. And one of the music's more significant manifestations plays Kuumbwa Center in Santa Cruz on Monday night (12/5)—The Leaders.

This tight, witty, hard-edged unit includes half a dozen Young Turks who've fronted their own groups—Arthur Blythe (alto sax), Lester Bowie (trumpet), Chico Freeman (tenor), Kirk Lightsey (piano), Cecil McBee (bass), Don Moye (drums). They'll do Kuumbwa sets at 7:30 and 9:30. Door charge of $12.50 per person. If you have eyes for that rare occasion, call the reservations number right away—427-2227.

The Leaders first organized in 1983 when they were scheduled onto the European festival circuit. Says Chico: "The traditional all-star group (features) musicians who get together to play some gigs. They usually play standards—tunes all the guys know and can do easily. The difference here is that all of The Leaders consider this group to be an ongoing and very interesting project. Each one of us treats The Leaders as his own group. We've composed music specifically for The Leaders. Our music is much more than a common denominator. The basis of the group is intuitive and meant to be experienced. The real leader of The Leaders is the music."

Context demands inclusion of a recent observation by American author Neil Sheehan. "As a people," he wrote, "we like to think of ourselves as a simple nation with straightforward motives. We are a complicated people, driven by all sorts of fears and insecurities." One fear source has been the post-chordal, post-modal free jazz played by powerful Black musicians like Bowie and Moye (both of whom have the Art Ensemble of Chicago in their professional histories). It's a given that The Leaders all are superb technicians and writers; their genius-type breakthrough is to address this cultural paranoia with gritty upfront humor."

Local jazz photographer Will Wallace and I were called to cover the group's regional swing (Yoshi's in Oakland right before the Kuumbwa date) for the national Jazz Times. So the mails brought a copy of the latest album by The Leaders. It's on the Black Saint label—recorded last year in Manhattan, mixed in Paris, mastered in Milan. It's entitled Out Here Like This. And it's one of those items which time itself may define as historic.

First of all, these men meet the free jazz issue head-on with original barnburners that are so heartily inside (inside the swinging chordal tradition), that the listener can but laugh and laugh as a gesture of appreciation. On one cut, Arthur Blythe moves outside very briefly. Band members break into speech—"What's he doing?" and "Man, I don't like this." So Arthur comes back, nailing the syrup sound of bored or habitually derivative players. Woody Allen has had the same sort of fun on film, quoting his critics outright. John Steinbeck was a master of the ploy, in letters mostly, before he lost his sense of fun.

There's nothing cruel about the album. Bowie blows a tender, breathy ballad that would make masters like Tadd Dameron and Billy Strayhorn smile. It seems The Leaders have come full circle and now celebrate the classic grooves and even romantic impressionism with new/old ears and eyes.

That makes sense. Chico's father—Von Freeman—ranks right up there with Gene Ammons as one of the very greatest Chicago tenormen. Kirk Lightsey honors and advances the piano tradition of his Detroit training ground—Hank Jones, Tommy Flanagan, Barry Harris, so on. Arthur came up through the community jazz center started in Los Angeles by pianist Horace Tapscott. Tapscott was told by the extraordinary jazz educator Samuel Brown (Jefferson High) that Horace could have "some of the magic" only if Horace would "do something real with it." Point: these artistic and spiritual standards keep coming back—when the right combinations of younger players occur.

I suspect that The Leaders crafted a deliberate return to the substantial magic of Von and Tommy and Samuel Brown, who taught people like Mingus and Hampton Hawes and Britt Woodman as well. We'll have a chance to chat at some length before the Yoshi's and Kuumbwa gigs. Stay tuned.

MONTEREY BAY Club's December bookings include the appearance of Santa Cruz trombonist Steve Sigmund—from the Ray Charles Band. He's back off the international road and will bring a quartet into the Sheraton jazz room (12/21).

Bay Club manager Teri Waros says too that Atlanta pianist Dick Drew will hold forth Thursday (12/1) and then later in the month (12/22). Dick plans to settle here; thus far his work has inspired nothing but praise from listeners and other players.

The annual Christmas Tree Decorating Party will happen (12/13) as flugelhornist Jackie Coon and banjo man Ed Erickson collaborate on bright tunes.

Pianist Bob Phillips again has signed on for Sunday nights. Excellent choice.

•

THE ANNIVERSARY of Jack Kennedy's murder was of course noted via worldwide media coverage late last month. For the record: the man loved jazz.

Billy Eckstine campaigned for JFK. In conversations with Billy, Kennedy identified Dexter Gordon as his favorite tenorman.

The late pianist Hamp Hawes was set up for a Los Angeles drug bust in the hope that he then would cooperate in the arrests of addicted colleagues. He refused. From federal prison, Hamp wrote a personal appeal to JFK—and later a presidential pardon came down.

•

KAZU RADIO will hold a record sale this weekend—overstock that includes "lots of jazz albums and some new things among the hundreds being offered." So says Music Director Ace Lopez.

On Saturday (12/3) the special event will run from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday's five-hour opportunity will start at noon. Place: the station itself at 176 Forest in Pacific Grove (right above the restaurant called Peppers).

NOTEBOOK CHUNKS:

• Carmel High's jazz ensemble will perform at Sunset Center Friday night (12/2) as part of the Winter Fiesta announced by School Music Director Richard Robins. Offered will be a Dizzy Gillespie composition plus charts by Frank Myers. It's $2 per adult; students and seniors admitted free of charge. Starts at 7:30. Reception follows.

• The aforementioned Barry Harris will play an exclusive date Sunday (12/4) at Berkeley's Maybeck Recital Hall. Info: (415) 848-3228. The masterful bop pianist these days maintains jazz-based performance space in Manhattan; proceeds support a program that offers music lessons to youngsters who live in the welfare hotels.

• Hartnell College Jazz Ensemble will perform at the Winter Concert in Hartnell Recital Hall (12/16). The no-cost presentation has a 7 p.m. start time.

• San Francisco Symphony announces Masonic Auditorium Pop Concerts featuring Ray Charles (12/16) and Tony Bennett (12/17). Box office: (415) 431-5400.

• Hot rumor from New York has brilliant jazz vocalist Cleo Laine signing on for the road company of Stephen Sondheim's Tony-winning Into the Woods. The show will hit San Francisco's Golden Gate Theater next summer. We'll keep trying to confirm her participation.

Youth Orchestra performs at Hidden Valley

THE YOUTH and Honors Orchestras of Youth Music Monterey, 60 local school musicians, will present their first concerts of the season on Sunday, Dec. 4.

The concerts will be presented at Hidden Valley Music Seminars in Carmel Valley, at 1 p.m. A second concert will begin at 4:30 p.m. at Hartnell College in Salinas. Both concerts are open to the public and admission is free.

The concerts will be conducted by Interim Music Director Jason Klein. Music director Vincent Gomez will conduct one of the works, Mozart's "Oboe Concerto in C-Major," K. 314, first movement, with one of Gomez' Honduran students appearing as guest soloist.

The December program will feature the youth orchestra in Bohm's "Perpetual Motion", Roman's "Suite for Orchestra" and Knipper's "Meadowlands". The honors orchestra will present a symphonic arrangement of Gershwin's "The Man I Love," Beethoven's "Overture Egmont", Hungarian Dances 11, 14 and 15 by Brahms, and the Mozart Concerto. Both orchestras will combine to play the "Marche Militaire" from Saint-Saens' Suite Algerienne, and Lecuona's Suite "Andalucia".

Carl Jung devotees meet Friday

WHERE DOES the energy which fuels creative work come from? A short talk and long experiential work periods will help participants get their own answers to that question at the workshop to be held at 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. It is sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung.

Titled "The Trickster Archetype: A Process-Oriented Approach," the workshop will focus on how the Trickster "...is at one and the same time creator and destroyer, giver and negator, he who dupes others and is always duped himself. He wills nothing consciously. At all times he is constrained to behave as he does from impulses over which he has no control...yet through his actions all values come into being."

This quotation is from the book by Paul Radin titled "The Trickster—A Study in American Indian Mythology" which best describes this aspect of how human consciousness may have evolved.

Guiding participants in discovering how they may experience this archetypal figure in their own lives will be Katherine Ziegler.

The public is invited to this and all other events sponsored by the Friends of C.G, Jung, which is an informal group of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for making practical applications of the seminal ideas of the famous Swiss psychologist/philosopher.

Prior registration is suggested but not required. A modest donation is also suggested. For further information, call or write: 649-8809; 853 Pacific St., Monterey.

May your days be merry and bright.
And may all your Christmases be bright.

Away In A Manger

Away in a manger. no crib for a bed.
The little lord Jesus laid down his sweet head.
The stars in the sky looked down where he lay.
The little Lord Jesus asleep on the hay.

The cattle are lowing. the poor Baby wakes.
But little Lord Jesus no crying He makes.
I love Thee. Lord Jesus. look down from the sky.
And stay by my cradle till morning is nign.

Be near me. Lord Jesus. I ask Thee to stay
Close by me forever. and love me I pray.
Bless all the dear children in Thy tender care.
And take us to heaven. to live with Thee there.

Angels We Have Heard On High

Angels we have heard on high.
Sweetly singing o'er the plains.
And the mountains in reply
Echoing their joyous strains.

O Christmas Tree

O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.
Thou tree most fair and lovely.
O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.
Thous tree most fair and lovely.
The sight of thee at Christmastide
Spreads hope and gladness far and wide.
O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.
Thou tree most fair and lovely.

O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.
Thou hast a wondrous message.
O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.

Thou has a wondrous message.
Thou dost proclaim the Saviour's birth.
Good will to men and peace on earth.
O Christmas tree. O Christmas tree.
Thou hast a wondrous message.

Kiskadden's coastal scenes

ROBERT M. Kiskadden's California coastal scenes will be featured in a one-man show at Carmel Fine Art through Dec. 17. The opening reception will take place 5 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3. Kiskadden, now a Carmel resident, served 35 years as acting dean of fine arts at Wichita State University. Carmel Fine Art is located at 112 Crossroads Blvd., Carmel. For further information, call 624-4410.

St. Nicholas will visit the Weihnachtsmarkt

The Santa Claus story began with the legendary life of a Spanish Bishop, Nicholas of Myra.

For 1700 years, the truths and fictions of St. Nicholas; life blended together to form a heritage embraced by cultures the world over.

Today in the United States, one authentic, European-style "Weihnachtsmarkt" celebrates the Feast Day of St. Nicholas each Dec. 6.

Every year, on Dec. 6, the merchants and restaurateurs of the Barnyard in Carmel set up colorful tables of foods and Christmas items in the Barnyard gardens. All day, people browse among the wares enjoying jugglers, musicians, clowns and carolers.

As dusk approaches, the crowd gathers around the huge Christmas tree standing silent in an open courtyard. Suddenly, with a flourish of trumpets, St. Nicholas arrives on a greast white horse accompanied by his servant "Black Peter." He waves to the children, red robes and white beard flowing. He stops, raises his golden staff and as if by magic the tree bursts into color and the childrens' choir joins in song.

For the rest of the evening, as St. Nicholas greets each child from a golden throne, it is evident in the faces of the children that through the centuries of legend, the simple legacy of a compassionate holyman endures in modern times.

The Barnyard "Weihnachsmarkt" is set noon to dusk on Tuesday, Dec. 6. The Barnyard is at the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

For more information call 624-8886.

Tree of Life illuminated Dec. 1 atop Sheraton

The third annual Tree of Life of Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula tree lighting ceremony will take place on Monday, Dec. 5, at 5:30 p.m. at Portola Plaza in Monterey. Congressman Leon Panetta is honorary chairman and the mayors of area cities are co-chairmen. Entertainment will be provided by the Santa Catalina Upper School Chorus, Brian Vaughn, director. Refreshments will be served.

The tree will shine atop the Monterey Sheraton throughout the holiday season. Community members may donate lights in honor or in memory of their loved ones for $15 or more per light. Lights will continue to be added to the tree throughout the holiday season as donations are received.

20th Festival of Trees begins four-day run Thursday

THE MONTEREY Peninsula rings in its merriest holiday season ever as plans take shape for a host of festivities for visitors and residents alike.

The 20th annual Festival of Trees can be viewed Thursday through Sunday, Dec. 1-4 at the Monterey Fairgrounds. This event benefits the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and features 30 dazzling christmas trees adorned in handcrafted ornaments and lights. Volunteers work year-round developing unique designs for each tree and making the ornaments. More than 100,000 hours of effort have been contributed to make this year's array of trees a celebration for the whole community to enjoy.

The Festival of Trees is open Thursday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. In addition to viewing the trees, visitors may shop for gifts from around the world at the Museum Store and for homebaked goodies at the Country Store. A Christmas doll, complete with her own wardrobe packed in her very own trunk, is being auctioned on Sunday along with one of the decorated trees. Local author Randy Reinstedt will be on hand and a surprise visit from Santa Claus is scheduled as well as entertainment for the children. A champagne brunch will also be served on Sunday from 10:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Sunday. (Reservations are suggested for the brunch).

NEXT ON the holiday list of activities is the annual tree lighting ceremony, beginning 6:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2 at Colton Hall. Join the town's mayor, Dan Albert, for an evening of carols, entertainment, and refreshments.

On Tuesday, Dec. 6 is the Weihnachtsmarkt at the Barnyard in Carmel. This pageant transforms Carmel's picturesque shopping center, The Barnyard, into a European-style marketplace for a traditional German festival, Weihnachtsmarkt, St. Nicholas arrives riding a white steed to light the Christmas tree and greet the children with sweet treats.

Also on Dec. 6, Christmas at the Inns celebrates the warmth and special beauty of the holiday season with a walking tour of several of Pacific Grove's historic bed and breakfast inns. Usually a sell-out, tickets are available at the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce.

Another colorful event on the Peninsula is the Posada Procession and Pinata Party scheduled Friday, Dec. 9. This traditional candlelight parade re-enacts Mary and

Multi-media collections will open at Pacific Grove Art Center

PHOTOGRAPHS by Henry Gilpin and works by more than 80 members of the Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation will be featured in an exhibit opening Friday, Dec. 2 at the Pacific Grove Art Center. An opening reception is planned 7 to 9 p.m. at the center, located at 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Henry Gilpin studied with Wynn Bullock and began teaching at Monterey Peninsula College in 1963. He assisted Ansel Adams in his Yosemite photo workshops for eight summers beginning in 1968.

Gilpin's imagery is a study in light and patterns. Gilpin confesses that he makes photographs for the enjoyment of an audience of one — himself. Gilpin's photographs can be viewed in the Photography Gallery at the Pacific Grove Art Center.

The David Henry Gill Gallery, the Elmarie Dyke Gallery and the Hall Galleries will be installed with works by members of the Monterey Peninsula Art Foundation. One wall will be dedicated to longtime Monterey artist, teacher and MPAF member, the late Victor Di Gesu.

In this, the fourth annual members' exhibit, a variety of mediums are represented, including oil, acrylic, drawing and watercolor. The show offers a true cross section of artwork, representing artists on every level of accomplishment.

BAY LIGHTS

By Ray Mungo

Wasn't that a time

GETTING AWAY from it all has never been better than at the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, which has just opened 100 hotel suites on a green hilltop overlooking its golf course and condominiums. Each room in this place is a complete apartment with wet bar, fireplace, deck, privacy, hot tub (some outdoors) and 24-hour-a-day room service by a staff that numbers two and a half employees for every guest suite.

Turn right six miles out the Carmel Valley Road, just after the Mid Valley Shopping Center, and you'll find the entrance to the Ranch Resort on your left, with security gate admitting members, residents, and hotel guests holding reservations. Then go straight uphill to the grand lodge built with generous glass, marble, fine woods and massive stone fireplace.

We abandoned our vehicle and took a short ride by golf cart to an executive conference suite with fine art on the walls, genuine Mexican artifacts and ceramics, colorful handmade rugs, bar amply stocked with wines, liquors, mixers and snacks, both in- and outdoor spas, two fireplaces, formal dining room outfitted in Aztec grandeur, library of serious contemporary books, plush robes, cathedral ceilings, marble surrounds, private decks on all sides, sophisticated lighting, remote controls, VCR, two telephone lines and scenic views of the peaceful valley.

General manager Cal Jepson described this palace of private retreats as a "hotel which features 100 private dining rooms." You can order the superb cuisine of executive chef Peter D'Andrea brought to the room, or take your culinary pleasure in the elegant lodge dining room. Since the night turned dark and stormy, Bay Lights and lodging companion ordered dinner "in" and in no time the waiter appeared with fresh tablecloth, flowers, hand-painted china by local Carmel artisans and piping hot entrees of poached salmon with champagne cream and sevruga caviar and grilled filet of beef with meaux mustard.

Both dinners were excellent, the salmon with caviar earning highest honors as we luxuriated in our robes by the cozy fire. And you don't have to be a tourist to enjoy it. Jepson reported that a growing number of locals check in to escape from the breakneck pace of modern life here on the peninsula.

Morning came too soon...

THE BEST of the Best Fest goes on this month as Bay Lights revisits our favorite restaurants from this year's weekly columns. Last week we popped back into The Fishwife, this week we surprised impressario Michael Jones at his popular Silver Jones Restaurant in the Barnyard.

Business is steady at Silver Jones, purveyors of highly original and universally delicious California cuisine like wok-charred tuna with mango and L.A. style pizza cecilia with chevre, worth a return trip any old time. This place has become a favored hangout for the movers and shakers, yuppie power lunches go on (and on) under the Cinzano umbrellas and it's not only tasty but funnnnn. Never know who you'll run into at SJ.

Our dining companion, a first timer, had the famous chevre pizza and like everybody else, gobbled up every bite while raving. We tried something new, the curry chicken salad on a croissant, and could hardly thank Jones enough for having the courage to produce a real curry, strong enough to pack a wallop but milder than what we had in Calcutta and Madras. This guy can plain flat out cook, and also has the Moveable Feast catering firm.

If forced to single out the best local restaurant to debut in 1988, we'd have to hand it to SJ, and long may they char that tuna in a wok. House wine, by the way, is France's Valbon...

DRINKING WINE is a pastime, an art form, a cultural mindset better known in Europe than here in the U.S. Wine critic Rod Smith of the San Francisco Chronicle told an audience at his Writers' Jamboree workshop that the market of persons who drink wine in this country is not increasing—a trend which evidently worries the industry—but that wine lovers are drinking better and more premium wines these days.

Smith, who appeared with Monterey Life wine writer Joe Tarantino, is "trying to address regular people" in his Chronicle column, to "popularize" wine appreciation and remove some of the snobbishness and pretension which people associate with the art of viticulture. There's also a "Neo-Prohibitionist" trend in today's society, he said, with highly conservative elements disparaging the use of any alcoholic beverages.

Fortunately no such people appeared at the workshop, where participants rated five outstanding Monterey County chardonnays in a blind taste test, and we learned a lot. Thanks to May Waldroup for the croissants, muffins and fruit platter which accompanied this delicious and educational workshop...

•

CANDY CANES: The spirit of the season is in giving, and this month we're giving away fabulous prizes to you, dear readers, in exchange for your postcards. Send us a note indicating your favorite local restaurant and what you like about it. We'll draw winners out of a hat. This week's prize: a free Hollywood haircut and style by Dan Ferris, haircutter to the stars, at High on the Hog in Carmel. If this guy is good enough for Jane Fonda, Jon Voight and the Joffrey Ballet, he's good enough for us. We'll announce a new prize every week in December and send those cards to Bay Lights, Box G-1, Carmel 93921...

All entries become the property of Bay Lights and may be quoted in this column in the future so all your friends will know you had that enchilada...

ST. NICHOLAS Day is next Tuesday, Dec. 6, from noon to dark as the Barnyard becomes a European style open air market, and we'll be back with further improbable adventures...

Orchestra trains young musicians

The Youth and Honors Orchestras of Monterey County are now offering a training program for beginning and intermediate student instrumentalists who are interested in becoming members of the orchestras. The training program is designed to prepare students to enter the orchestras when they reach intermediate skills. Training is available at this time for viola, oboe, bassoon, French horn, string bass and trombone.

There will be no charge for this training to any student who demonstrates the motivation to progress and who resides in Monterey County. If a student is accepted into the Youth or Honors Orchestra, and wishes to continue with the trainer, lesson fees will then be charged to the student.

For further information or to schedule an audition, contact Michelle Noseworthy at 625-1955.

A CARMEL TRADITION SINCE 1937

ON STAGE

'The Nutcracker Caper'

FAMILY FANTASY Theatre presents an original production for the holidays. The Nutcracker Caper features Carol Collin as Perky the Penguin, Bob Colter as Stan Laurel, Carey Crockett as Oliver Hardy, Kirsten Lovell as Christy the Magic Christmas Tree and Martin Schmidt as Rodrick the Reindeer Ranger.

The Nutcracker Caper!

An original Christmas show written with the joy of family sharing in mind opens Friday, Dec. 2 at the Robert Down School Auditorium in Pacific Grove. The Nutcracker Caper is staged by Family Fantasy Theatre.

Carey Crockett and Robert Colter reprise their roles as screen immortals Laurel and Hardy. The Nutcracker Caper also features such characters as Spats and Noodles (Stan and Ollie's bad-guy counterparts), Santa's elves, the Reindeer Rangers and Christy the Magic Christmas Tree.

Rounding out the evening is an audience-participation version of The Night Before Christmas. Both shows are directed by Sandy Williams.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays through Dec. 18. The Robert Down School Auditorium is at 485 Pine Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Tickets are $5 general and $3.50 for juniors and senior citizens. Group discounts are also available. For information, call 649-5561 or 375-1120.

•

The Fantasticks

A musical fantasy in the tradition of Voltaire, The Fantasticks opens Thursday, Dec. 1 in the Monterey Peninsula College Main Theater.

The Fantasticks is a story of young love, parents, the world and human nature. Directed by Conrad Selvig, the production features choreography by Lucretia Butler. The cast includes Lyn Whiting, Len Parry, Michael Robbins, Bill Lindsay, Jay Hudson, Kerry Hartjen, Jessica Ann Stevenson and Jody Van Duinen.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays. Tickets are $12 general, $9 for students, military or seniors over 60, and $5 for children under 13.

The Fantasticks will continue through Dec. 23. For ticket information, call 649-5561 or 646-4213.

Fairy Tales for Christmas

Christmas is a time for fantasy — for adults and children — and the Staff Players Repertory Company will delight whole families with an evening of "Fairy Tales for Christmas."

A.A. Milne's The Ugly Duckling and David Mamet's Frog Prince is staged at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. These two glimpses of continuing magic allow the adult members of Staff Players Repertory Company to play the tales rather than the children.

Fairy Tales for Christmas play at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays through Dec. 18.

For reservations, call 624-1531.

•

You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown!

The Frohman Academy for Musical Theatre Education will stage the musical based on the "Peanuts" comic strip by Charles Schultz.

The cast of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown includes Michele Savage, Robert Basgall, Michael Abinante, John Freeman, Maura Leos and Marc Slattery.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 5:30 p.m. Sundays in the New Wharf Theatre, located on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for children. For reservations, call 625-9307.

•

Side by Side by Sondheim

Featured players are Laura McEvoy, Conni Ross and Jim Sutty. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Dec. 17, with the house opening at 7:30 p.m. Be sure to allow plenty of time to obtain a pass at the Fort Ord gate.

Tickets are $6 general and $5 for the military. The Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre is in Building 1288, located on the corner of Fourth Street and Fourth Avenue at Fort Ord. For reservations or information, call 242-6337, or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Call ahead for ski conditions

Details on 1988-89 ski season conditions and weather information for the Sierra Nevada will be available to winter sports fans who call the California State Automobile Association's ski phone (415) 864-6440.

THEATER REVIEW

By Sheila E. Toner

Fairy tales are Forest Theatre's Christmas fare

A CHANGE OF voice for the lead in Amahl and the Night Visitors has resulted in a change of program at Carmel's Forest Theatre. In place of Gian Carlo Menotti's operatic Christmas fable, the Staff Players Repertory Company is presenting Fairy Tales, a pair of short plays retelling the familiar childhood stories of "The Ugly Duckling" and "The Frog Prince."

The first is A.A. Milne's "The Ugly Duckling," but here the beleaguered swan is a princess who seems to lack the regal quality of beauty. Unfortunately Milne's mildly witty script delays explaining all the necessary facts about Princess Camilla's shortcomings, so that her first appearance onstage is somewhat puzzling, Also, many of the jokes take unnecessary swipes at wives and marital happiness. It seems odd that a king who makes so many snide remarks about marriage would be in such a hurry to rush his beloved daughter into that selfsame unhappy state.

However the actors manage to spin a pleasant web of mild entertainment out of Milne's faulty script. Alan Smith plays the King with fatuous benevolence, and Nancy Kocher makes a regal presence as the Queen. Shannon Anderson's Princess Camilla is every bit as spunky as the script demands, though a bit haughtier than necessary, while Brian Huntington plays her intended, Prince Simon, as a gentle Boy-Next-Door type.

Kelley Knapp almost steals the show as the doll-like Dulcibella, cooing and giggling in her borrowed feathers like a demented duck. Nathan Cook is somewhat stiff as her counterpart, the self-absorbed, posturing Carlo: it seems acting stupid doesn't come naturally to this actor. Gene Albee rounds out the cast nicely as the twitchy, whiny Chancellor.

•

"THE FROG Prince" by David Mamet takes up the second half of the evening's programme and features good performances from a strong cast. Mamet's play focuses on characters and relationships (surprise, surprise!), skipping over some of the elements in this familiar folk fable. What's left is an amiable tale about personal growth, loyalty, friendship and self-sacrifice — and a few snickers along the way.

Norman Stottmeister shows good comic timing in a consistently strong performance as the pompous Prince who must rely on a maiden's willing kiss to release him from his amphibious form. As his true-blue friend Bill, Mitchell Davis is the very picture of unquestioning loyalty. His stupefied expressions at the princely pronouncements speak volumes. Julie Hughett's enjoyable portrayal of the sweet, sensible milkmaid, and Loel Shuler's truly menacing witch leave nothing to be desired.

Stottmeister also designed the sets, which show an appropriately cartoon-like simplicity, while Shuler created the appealing costumes. Credit seasoned director Marcia Hovick for coaxing some passable performances from the actors on what must have been pretty short notice.

Fairy Tales is a pleasant diversion. There's no great drama, and nothing particularly memorable here, but there are a few laughs and a message or two for fairy tale lovers of all ages. If the kids are restless, there's nothing good on T.V., and all the good videos are rented, you might give this a go. It runs Thursday to Saturday at 8 p.m. until Dec. 18 at the Indoor Forest Theatre, Santa Rita at Mountain View, Carmel. There are some Sunday matinees. Tickets are $9 general; more information is at 624-1531.

'Sing It Yourself Messiah' set Sunday in Pacific Grove

THE SIXTEENTH ANNUAL "Messiah" sing will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4 at the Pacific Grove Methodist Church on Sunset and 17 Mile Drive.

This tradition is open to the public and there is no fee. Music Director is John Farr, choir director at the Pacific Grove Methodist Church.

The one-hour sing includes highlights of G.F. Handel's greatest and best known oratorio. There are no soloists, so the entire section sings the solo parts. All participants are urged to bring their own music, however, there will be copies available at the door.

All are encouraged to come and sing, not just to listen. For further information, contact Rob Klevan at 625-2097, or Raymond Kelly at 624-4490. This event is co-sponsored by the Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel.

Local artists organize holiday fair in Valley

TEN LOCAL artists will offer a variety of creative works ranging from pottery to pillows at the 8th annual Artists' Christmas Fair, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3-4 at the Farm Center Studios, Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads, just past the Mid Valley Shopping Center in Carmel Valley.

Many of the artists will open their studios so those attending the fair can see works on display where they were created. Visitors will be able to meet and talk with the artists as well.

There are both indoor and outdoor display areas, so the fair will take place, "rain or shine".

Participating artists include: Hiroshi Ogawa, decorative and practical Japanese pottery; Jennifer Long, who first organized the fair, functional stoneware with unusual colored glazes; Diane Swift, porcelain vases and ceramic wall-hangings; Melissa Lofton, luminous fabric lanterns and collages; Gerrica Connolly, watercolors and pastel paintings; and Diane Stegman, art and framing services.

Other participants will be: Robin Begbie, sculptural pottery and porcelain bowls; Orange Cleghorn, throw pillows and silk designs; Peter McArthur, black and white landscape photography; and Jack Dewitt, Venetian glass jewelry.

The fair is open free to the public. Additional information is available by contacting Diane Swift at Swift Tile Studio (624-7220) or Gerrica Connolly at Gerrica Connolly Studio (625-0140), both in Carmel Valley.

THEATER REVIEW

By Sheila E. Toner

Cabaret Theatre offers a song and dance routine

THE FORT ORD Cabaret Theatre lives up to its name with its current production of Side by Side by Sondheim, a musical review/revue of the career of songwriter and lyricist Steven Sondheim. This is a true cabaret piece, so it's at home in this setting.

Understandably, the focus is on singing more than any other talent in this show. So it's interesting that director Michael Cheak has cast only one true "voice," that of Conni Ross. The other two performers, Laura McEvoy and Jim Sutty, manage to carry a tune, but the strain is often evident in their voices. Energy and characterization are the strong points of their performances.

The show opens with a rousing rendition of "Comedy Tonight," the trademark opening song from A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Other famous tunes include "If Momma Was Married" from Gypsy, "Send in the Clowns" from A Little Night Music, "A Boy Like That" from West Side Story, and "Company" from (you guessed it) Company.

Michael Cheak's narration from a position at the side of the stage provides the linking mechanism.

In "Getting Married Today," McEvoy breezes through the tongue-tripping lyrics with nary a stumble and with every word clearly enunciated. Her rendition of "Send in the Clowns" is winsomely wistful while her voice characterization in "Broadway Baby" strikes a true note. McEvoy's rather rough voice serves as an interesting foil for Ross's sweeter tones in their duets — "Can That Boy Foxtrot," "If Momma Was Married," and "A Boy Like That."

Conni Ross puts the versatility of her voice to the test in songs ranging from the gentle, poignant "In Buddy's Eyes" to the playful "I Never Do Anything Twice" to the touching "Take Me to the World." Sondheim's music generally suits Ross's singing abilities, though some of the higher notes seem to be quite a stretch for her.

Singing most definitely is not Jim Sutty's forte, so he wisely concentrates on character, using expressions and gestures to emphasize the meaning in the songs. He comes across best in "Buddy's Blues," and in his version of "Could I Leave You," where he truly conveys the anger, frustration and disgust of a spouse too long taken for granted. Sutty also earned howls from the audience as part of an Andrews Sisters-style trio in "You Could Drive a Person Crazy," and in the campy "You Gotta Get a Gimmick." However, I was offended by his lisping portrayal in the former, and curious about his costuming in the latter. My advice is, take a clue from Les Ballets de Trockadero and wear that tutu, don't just pull it on over your "real" clothes.

For the most part, Cheak's direction has resulted in a well-paced, cohesive show. However, his narration shows some lapses in taste. The joke repeating W.C. Field's definition of a virgin should have been omitted: it came too close to the decidedly unfunny problem of pedophilia.

Wholehearted compliments go to Rosana Yadegari and Marvin McKnight, whose piano playing set the tone (literally and figuratively) for the show. Before closing, I wish to address the topic of Sondheim's material. In song after song, we're presented with lyrics that reinforce the stereotype of the woman whose sole reason for being is to serve as an adjunct to a man, and the immature man who wants to have his cake and eat it too. This is love? This is romance? Bah, humbug!

Taken as a whole, Side by Side by Sondheim is a respectable presentation of many familiar Broadway tunes. The production runs Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and general admission is $6. Plan an extra 15 minutes into your schedule: under Fort Ord regulations you must check in at the Visitor Center with your driver's license, proof of auto insurance and car registration. And there's always a line...

Joseph's search for lodging. A mariachi band leads the procession through the streets of Monterey followed by a pinata party in the Monterey Conference Center. The event begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Conference Center.

History and tradition are highlighted in the annual Christmas in the Adobes celebration set Thursday and Friday, Dec. 15-16, from 5 until 9 p.m. Monterey's finest adobes open their doors providing an opportunity for visitors to view them in all their holiday splendor. Costumed hosts and hostesses greet visitors, luminaries light pathways, and music warms your spirit.

The adobes are clustered in a five-block area within walking distance of each other. Parking is available in the Fisherman's Wharf parking lot and ticket buyers may purchase their tickets at either Custom House or Pacific House, both of which are located near the wharf area.

Tickets for the self-guided walking tour are priced at $7 for adults and $1 for children 6-17. Sponsored by the California State Department of Parks and Recreation and the Old Monterey Preservation Society, the tour includes 13 historic buildings each decorated in the traditions of Christmas past.

Large groups of visitors are encouraged to break into smaller groups. Bus parking is available at the Wharf parking lot.

The Singing Christmas Tree performs Thursday through Monday, Dec. 15 through 19, marking its 25th annual participation as a community activity. Join with other local residents in the singing of Christmas carols and the passing of the peace. The Singing Christmas Tree is located on Cannery Row.

Defense Language Institute orchestra tunes up Tuesday

THE DLI Pancultural Orchestra celebrates its fifth anniversary with a holiday concert. The ensemble under the direction of Theodore Gargiulo, has presented programs that focus in on the cultures of the world through the universal language of music. The repertoire includes works ranging from baroque, classical, romantic, symphonic, folk and popular music of various national origins. Students, faculty, teachers and musicians from the community make up the ensemble.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6, the Joint Services Chorale of the DLI will be featured with the orchestra in a symphonic arrangement of Christmas Carols and selections from West Side Story. Music for Brass Ensemble will precede the concert at 7:15 p.m. in the entrance lobby to the Steinbeck Forum at the Monterey Conference Center. Orchestral selections will include Tschaikovsky's "Waltz of the Flowers" and Clement C. Moore's immortal poem " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas" as arranged for orchestra and narrator. The narration will be interpreted by Chaplain Ardon Schmidt.

Barbara Smythe, announcer for "The Second Season of Opera" Saturday afternoons on KAZU radio, will preside over the orchestral presentation.

Following the concert everyone is invited to join the Brass Ensemble and the Chorale in the reception area. Ethnic holiday delicacies and refreshments will be served in the lobby where a sing-a-long of favorite Christmas Carols to the accompaniment of the brass ensemble will commence this joyous occasion of the Advent Season. The concert is free and open to the community.

For information, call 647-5110 or 372-6728.

Visitors welcomed to the inns of Pacific Grove

SEVEN OF Pacific Grove's bed and breakfast inns will open their doors for your holiday enjoyment on Tuesday, Dec. 6, from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m., for an evening "Christmas at the Inns" tour.

The Pacific Grove Art Center and Pacific Grove Heritage Society invite you to participate in its fourth annual "Christmas at the Inns" tour and have an opportunity to meet the innkeepers.

The Centrella Hotel, Gosby House Inn, Green Gables Inn, Maison Bleue Country French Inn, Martine Inn, Pacific Grove Inn and Old St. Angela Inn will serve holiday refreshments in their parlors arrayed in Yuletide nostalgia. Sounds of the season will entertain you while you are basking in the holiday cheer and warm hospitality at each of the inns.

For further information contact the Pacific Grove Chamber of Commerce at 373-3304, located at the corner of Forest and Central avenues in Pacific Grove.

Tickets are $10.

Your dog or cat is only a phone call away from home if he or she's wearing an ID tag when you become separate for any reason. An ideal ID is a dog license, and it also places you in compliance with the law, so that you will not be fined if your dog happens to become lost. It's time to renew your dog's license at City Hall by taking in a certificate or rabies vaccination and a certificate of spay or neuter. No need to take the dog. Even though cats are not required to be licensed, The SPCA of Monterey County urges cat owners to have cats vaccinated against rabies and to tag them with a small cat ID tag. The cat collars available at The SPCA and at most pet shops have an elastic section so the cat cannot be strangled if the collar catches on something.

Interested in adopting one of these terrific pets? Visit the SPCA shelter at 1002 Monterey Salinas Highway 68, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and on Weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A favorite gallery for collectors of abstract art, Rose Rock Gallery features the colorful, gestural oil paintings of Patricia Selin. Sometimes soft and meditative, and sometimes bold and powerful, Selin's unique personal style can always be recognized by her inspired use of color, sensuous surfaces and rhythmic composition. Whether you prefer the drama of a wall-size painting, or are seeking a smaller example of this gifted artist's work, you will find a large variety of choices in your favorite palette at Rose Rock Gallery. Tucked away in a corner of Del Dono Court, at the southwest corner of Dolores and Fifth Streets in Carmel, the gallery is open every day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on evenings by appointment. 624-2123

23. GATEWAY GALLERY

Featuring original oil and watercolor landscapes seascapes, florals. Featured is a wide range of artists to include Dalva Duarte, Pierre Bittar, Elvio Mainardi, Michel Pinier, Ramon Orrit, Gaston Thierry, Marcestal. Children's community chorus formed

A community chorus for children is being formed under the direction of Jacqueline Rosett Dickman. Admission is free to the program, which is sponsored by the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula.

The performing group will offer fun and fellowship and opportunities to learn musicianship and dramatic skills.

Weekly rehearsals will take place Wednesdays at the church, located on Carmel Valley Road one mile east of Highway 1. Ages through fifth grade meet 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and sixth graders through high school age will meet 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

For details, call 624-6809.

Suicide prevention volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed to staff the crisis lines of the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center of Monterey County. Interested individuals will be trained. For more information, call 375-6966.

Give extra bags to Goodwill

Goodwill Industries is putting out a call for paper and plastic bags for use in their stores in Monterey and Santa Cruz counties. Grocery bags will be received at Goodwill stores and Attended Donation Stations throughout the area.

THIS ELEGANT HOME IS SPECIAL

Sweeping Monterey Bay views could be half the value of this architecturally important property which is located in Pacific Grove. This Colonial gem is ideally located on approximately an acre and is surrounded by a Williamsburg, VA. Originally built in 1920, this home was remodeled & rebuilt in 1952 and extensively updated since that time. The beauty of Monterey Bay is complemented by the reverence of this elegant 2-story home and its immaculate grounds. It is the perfect home for gracious entertaining, whether serving brunch in the gazebo or a lavish dinner in the formal dining room. The 50-foot living room has one wall that is a slate fireplace, a carved wood ceiling and bookcases. The family room also has a fireplace with built-in barbecue complete with rotisserie and light. The gourmet kitchen has abundant storage, top of the line appliances, pegged hardwood floors and breakfast nook with BAY VIEWS. On the second floor there are 4 bedrooms, 2 baths and a glass enclosed lanai. In a wing looking toward the sea, there is a guest apartment with living room, bedroom and kitchenette. The grounds are beautifully kept with a huge assortment of flowers, shrubs and evergreens. Shown by appointment only. $1,150,000.

GREAT FLOOR PLAN

This is a one-of-a-kind home, custom built on a large lot and in PERFECT CONDITION. It has 3 bedrooms, 2 baths and is located in the Pine Canyon area of Salinas. Just 4 years old, this home has distinctive master bedroom/bath suite that is 19x15 square feet. It has two fireplaces, a modern kitchen, solid oak cabinets, custom moulding and top quality carpet. $365,000.

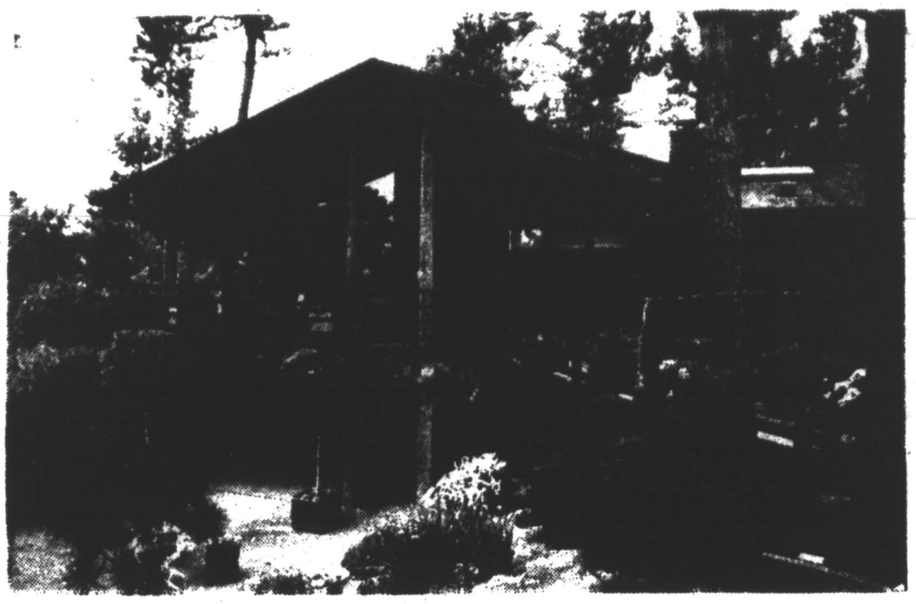
Ronda Road Retreat



If we were starting from scratch to name a street, we'd think "Ronda Road" an inspired choice. Especially if it turned out to look like this Ronda Road in Pebble Beach, and the houses along it were as attractive as this one.

Take Oleada to Ronda and swing in at the 4th driveway on the left. This mounts up a slight rise, brings you to a sizeable parking plaza, and delivers you to a short, geranium lined bridge that leads to the entrance. Below you is one of several patios. To your left are broad views of the forest and the ocean.

The exterior is shingles with black frames on doors and windows. The roof is steeply pitched away from you, and a long wing extends to the right.

The interior is panelled in all heart redwood. The living room rises to a cathedral ceiling with twin black beams supported by giant poles which reach to the ground. Floors are oak, there are windows all about, and a towering chimney breast that looks like slate (but is steel).

To the right is the panelled dining room, and beyond it the fascinating kitchen and family room. But wait...

Go straight ahead instead through a vaulted hall to the two main floor bedrooms. On the left is the blue bedroom, with shuttered windows facing the sea, and a satisfying bath with double sinks, triple mirrors, glassed-in tub and shower and a private commode. (We like private commodes.)

The master suite on the right is so large a queen-size bed set at an angle looks like a postage stamp. More shuttered windows and a bath-and-a-half that requires a tour guide. There are 3 sinks, white tiled floor, skylights, private shower and tub, and the ever popular private commode.

Let's go back to the kitchen. It too is panelled in redwood, has a vaulted roof, Mexican tile floor, and an intimate conversational nook at the far end. This centers about a fireplace faced with Portuguese (blue) tile, has sunken lights in its beamed ceiling, and becomes the end point of every party. The kitchen itself has every convenience, including a cleverly concealed wall barbecue and a hidden pantry. There's a protected patio just outside with colonnades, arbored top and various levels of redwood decking.

The lower level has 2 more sizeable bedrooms, a wonderful bathroom, many more closets and cabinets to supplement those upstairs, and very large storage rooms. This area deserves an ad of its own, but it will have to wait till next week. Unless it's sold in the meantime. $895,000. Oh, in the Nuts & Bolts Dept., the lot is a little over an acre. And the house is 3200 sq ft.

CARMEL

OCEAN VIEW MEDITERRANEAN! Capturing lovely ocean scenes, a classic Mediterranean with "old world" ambiance in prime south of Ocean, one-block to beach location! This two story home, aptly named "Heavenly Hill," is well situated high above the street for privacy and "best view" orientation. There is extensive use of tile, Carmel stone and arched doorways, with a loggia family room, fireplace in living room, 3 bedrooms & 3 baths. Plus hot house & beautiful tiled indoor spa! $895,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! Freshly painted inside and out and in turn-key condition, 3 bedroom, 2 bath home in area convenient to the Carmel Mission, Mission Trails Park and Crossroads Shopping Center. This immaculate, sunny & bright home has an enclosed, fenced front-yard entry, and a brick fireplace warms the living room, which opens to the patio and rear yard, ideal for children's play. There are hardwood floors, wainscotting in the remodeled kitchen, with its country look, and the master bedroom has sliding doors opening to the patio. Two-car garage. Priced for the first time buyer or investor! $239,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! Overlooking the forest views from one side of the home, and lovely, private garden patio views from the other, a gracious, comfortable home in quiet area of town. The spacious living and dining rooms are separated by a wall with see-thru fireplace. Both the dining room and family room overlook the patio-garden, and the living room opens to a large, sunny deck and forest views. Two master bedroom suites, utility room, and storage galore. Plus built-in bookcases and alarm system. $319,500. 625-0300.

NEAR CARMEL MISSION! Light and cheerful, a well-constructed contemporary in a great location just steps to Mission Trails Park and the Carmel Basilica. Enhanced by high ceilings and hardwood floors in the living and dining rooms, and vaulted-beam ceiling in the kitchen, this 2 bedroom, 2 bath home is very livable. A marble fireplace warms the living room, and there is a free-standing fireplace in the downstairs den. Most windows are wood trimmed and have shutters. Sun deck in rear yard with oaks & pines. On large lot set back from the road. $334,500. 625-0300.

DRAMATIC CONTEMPORARY! Capturing lovely views of Point Lobos and valley hills is this gracious custom-built Carmel Views contemporary. The living room is elegant, spacious and enhanced by high ceilings, marble fireplace and large windows framing the views. Hardwood floors in the living and dining area add to the charm of this home, and there is a handsome fireplace in the spacious family room. Three levels assure privacy and add to the unique design — with two bedrooms on lower level and the master suite on the upper level. The large, light-filled kitchen has doors opening to the sun deck, which offers lovely views of Point Lobos. $435,000. 625-0300.

FRESHLY REMODELED HOME! In prime South-of-Ocean Avenue location, a freshly remodeled home offering an appealing country French flavor. Enjoy a wind-protected tile terrace with access through French doors from the enlarged dining room with built-in buffet, and from the living room with handsome fireplace. The new kitchen addition with garden outlook allows room for a pantry and washer/dryer closet and offers access to the front patio. A built-in buffet is in the dining room, and there are hardwood floors everywhere, except for the 2 bedrooms & 2 baths. Master bedroom has lovely deck with peek of sea. $545,000. 625-4111.
